INTRODUCTION

These reports are intended for a general, nonspecialist audience. They run the gamut of the arts and sciences, historical and current events, and should provide the reader with useful introductions to given topics. May they encourage a few happy hours of suggestive thought!

MONSTERS BATTLE FOR CONTROL

It is nicknamed Fighting Dinosaurs and it is the most famous fossil specimen in history. Found in the Gobi Desert and dated to the Cretaceous Period eighty million years ago, it shows two dinosaurs locked in mortal combat. One dinosaur digs its claws into the neck of the other, while the other bites into its opponent's neck with its beak. Then the dinosaurs are buried alive and vanish from the stage of history. Since the dawn of the twentieth century, two forces of primitivism have been locked in mortal combat and been battling for the control of civilization. They represent the eternal struggle between two manifestations of an unbalanced mind, and they have risen to prominence during the late stage of Western Culture, a stage of decline and fall marked by the rejection of reason and the embrace of religion. These two forces of religion worship things which can never exist, but they appeal to people unable to cope with the demands of living. They represent two sides of the same counterfeit coin, stamped mental disease, and they fight each other as insane people fight each other, as brothers sharing common premises. One side of the coin, one religion, one form of insanity, worships matter and denies the existence of man's mind and freedom. It worships a god called Society and sacrifices the rights, freedoms and dignity of the individual on its unholy altar. This god is held to be all powerful, to be everywhere and nowhere, to be nonphysical and supernatural, and the fact that people cannot see it is because people are blind, and people are blind because they have eyes. The other side of the coin, the other religion, the other form of insanity, worships a god in heaven and devalues the existence of matter. It calls this god by the name of God and sacrifices the rights, freedoms and dignity of the individual on its unholy altar. Like the god called Society, this God is held to be all powerful, to be everywhere and nowhere, to be nonphysical and supernatural, and the fact that people cannot see it is because people are blind, and people are blind because they have eyes. In the final stage of the West which commenced at the dawn in the twentieth century, the voices of these two religions, the voices of materialists and spiritualists, the mystics of Society and the mystics of God, confront a common enemy called the Enlightenment, and their mass popularity is bringing down a new Dark Ages. In the late modern age, these primitive forces have acquired new names, and under these new names, they carry on their primordial struggle. The mystics of Society are known as the Marxist Left, while the mystics of God are known as the Christian Right; the former emerged in the nineteenth century from the revelations of Karl Marx, while old time Christianity, along with Islam, has made a comeback in the late modern age; and the Marxist Left and Christian Right have been accumulating victory trophy after victory trophy in nation after nation across the West. Look at these two forces of disorder, two forces of mental, moral and political disorder, and see the final page of the West turn and bring down the end. The Marxist Left. Look at the Marxist Left proclaim that the primary realities in society are not physical individuals but economic classes. The history of mankind is a history of class struggles, and all truth and morality are class based truth and class based morality. The two classes which confront each other are called the proletariat and the bourgeois. The proletariat is the class of factory muscle laborers whose muscle labor creates all wealth, while the bourgeois is the class of intellectual laborers whose intellects create nothing because the human mind does not exist. The wealth produced by the proletarian muscle laborers is stolen from them by the idle bourgeois intellectual laborers, but history is on the side of the oppressed and exploited proletariat. Because matter is king and mind does not exist, machines, the means of production, magically change of their own accord, and their change from feudal machines into modern capitalist factory machines has brought into being the proletariat who operate the machines, and the new machines will propel the proletariat onto victory over the bourgeois. The magical creation of modern mass production machines will result in the extermination of the bourgeois by the proletariat, and the liberation of all mankind: "The history of all hitherto existing society is the history of class struggles. Freeman and slave, patrician and plebeian, lord and serf, guildmaster and journeyman, in a word, oppressor and oppressed, stood in constant opposition to one another, carried on an uninterrupted, now hidden, now open fight, a fight that each time ended, either in a revolutionary reconstitution of society at large, or in the common ruin of the contending classes. In the earlier epochs of history, we find almost everywhere a complicated arrangement of society into various orders, a manifold gradation of social rank. In ancient Rome we have patricians, knights, plebeians, slaves; in the Middle Ages, feudal lords, vassals, guildmasters, journeymen, apprentices, serfs; in almost all of these classes, again, subordinate gradations. The modern bourgeois society that has sprouted from the ruins of feudal society has not done away with class antagonisms. It has but established new classes, new conditions of oppression, new forms of struggle in place of the old ones. Our epoch, the epoch of the bourgeoisie, possesses, however, this distinct feature: it has simplified class antagonisms. Society as a whole is more and more splitting up into two great hostile camps, into two great classes directly facing each other—Bourgeois and Proletariat. The weapons with which the bourgeois felled feudalism to the ground are now turned against the bourgeois itself. But not only has the bourgeois forged the weapons that bring death to itself; it has also called into existence the men who are to wield those weapons—the modern working class—the proletarians. In proportion as the bourgeois, that is capital, is developed, in the same proportion is the proletariat, the modern working class, developed—a class of laborers who live only so long as they find work, and who find work only so long as their labor increases capital. These laborers, who must sell themselves piecemeal, are a commodity, like every other article of commerce, and are consequently exposed to all the vicissitudes of competition, to all the fluctuations of the market." (Communist Manifesto by Karl Marx and Friedrich Engels). The Christian Right. Look at the Christian Right proclaim that the only antidote to materialism, Marxism and nihilism is the belief in the existence of a god in heaven whose all powerful will can make matter come into being from nothingness and make two and two equal nine. The only antidote to the belief that life is a product of random mutations is the belief that life is the product of God, and the common sense belief that life is neither the product of chance nor of God but is the product of natural and necessary order possesses no validity. The incoherent beliefs that nature is not eternal or uncreated and there is something beyond nature, that time itself was created so that there was no time, no before, before the time of creation, and that nothing is as it is, no A is A, no apple is an apple, but can act like a nonapple by the all powerful will of the God of the Bible, are one and all established by science. They are established by the Big Bang, the Anthropic Principle, the Fine Tuning of the Universe, and the structure of DNA. The twentieth century saw a renaissance of old time religion, as cosmology proved that God exists, molecular biology proved that God exists, and reason and science proved that there exists a realm in which reason and science have no validity, a realm which is unperceivable, irrational, arbitrary, identityless and the definition of nonexistence: "For those curious about how God and science can coexist harmoniously rather than stand in opposition, numerous books explore the intersections of theology with cosmology, chemistry, molecular biology, mathematics, and physics. Many also provide historical accounts of sixteenth through nineteenth century scientists whose faith in the God of the Bible inspired their exploration of the natural world. This changed during the nineteenth century with the advent of the 'four, bearded god killers,' who made popular such theories as philosophical materialism, nihilism, Marxism and evolution. But the 'dawn of a revolution,'—perhaps a better term would be renaissance—began somewhere during the twentieth century as cosmologists looked heavenward and molecular biologists peered deeper into the nuclei of cells. One result is that many of these scientists threw in the towel on atheism and philosophical materialism when they realized what the evidence implied. Some went so far as to embrace theism, and others, Christianity and the Creator God of the Bible. The latest entry to make this case is God: the Science, the Evidence by Michel-Yves Bollore and Oliver Bonnassies. The book has just been published in English; the original was written in French and published as Dieu: La science, Les preuves in 2021. It has sold almost half a million copies. What sets this tome apart from most other works in the field is a generous sprinkling of quotations from scientists in support of the evidence for God from a variety of disciplines, as well as an entire chapter devoted to One Hundred Essential Citations From Leading Scientists. Apart from that, there is little new information offered for either the science or the evidence for God. This is not a criticism, but a recognition that most scientific discoveries referenced in the book, such as the Anthropic Principle and the Fine Tuning of the Universe, the evidence for the Big Bang and its implications, and the elucidation of the structure of DNA, occurred in the twentieth century." (The Case For A Creator, Backed By Science by Gregory Rummo). Monsters Battle for Control. In the twenty first century, two monsters are harassing and persecuting civilized people. They promote the rule of faith and force, all manner of cruelty to the mind and body, and destruction of the moral and intellectual life of nations. They are the monsters of old time religion and the latter day religion of Marxism: "It is customary among Christian apologists to regard communism as something very different from Christianity and to contrast its evils with the supposed blessings enjoyed by Christian nations. This seems to me a profound mistake. The evils of communism are the same as those that existed in Christianity during the Ages of Faith. Its cruelties are of the same sort, and the damage that it does to the intellectual and moral life of the nations it masters is of the same sort as that which was done by the Inquisitors whenever they prevailed." (Can Religion Cure Our Troubles? by Bertrand Russell). Monsters Battle for Control. In the Fighting Dinosaurs fossil specimen, the dinosaurs are buried alive while battling each other, buried either by quicksand, a sandstorm or a sand avalanche. In the twenty first century, the Marxist Left monster, now sprouting seven heads called gender, race, ethnicity, class, culture, sexual orientation and Islam, seven heads created by the relentless logic of Marxist tribalism, together with the Christian Right monster, are being buried by the civilizational rubble they have created.

OCTOBER 24, 2025: IRA TERROR ELECTED PRESIDENT OF IRELAND

They called it the Long War. It commenced in 1970 and covered the Emerald Isle in a pall of bombings, assassinations and ambushes. In 1973, it spread its terror attacks into mainland Britain and continental Europe. Between 1970 and 1998, the Irish Republican Army killed over 1800 people including over 600 civilians in its campaign to establish a Marxist state in Northern Ireland. In the 1998 Good Friday Agreement, the IRA agreed to lay down its arms and decommission, and end its terror campaign. In the twenty first century, supporters, sympathizers and splinter groups of the IRA remain active and continue to strike fear into the hearts of civilized people. On October 24, 2025, one of them was elected president of Ireland. Born in Galway on July 12, 1957, Catherine Martina Ann Connolly made history in her native land. It was not due to her gender, because she was the third woman to be elected president, but due to her political beliefs. On October 24, 2025, Catherine Connolly was the first voice of Marxism and terror to hold the highest office in the Land of Saints and Scholars, and she has vowed to continue her efforts to overthrow Israel, the West and the existence of Ireland as a free country. Look at her program and platform and see what sixty three percent of Irish voters have done. In a landslide election, during the late stage of Western civilization when Marxism is entrenched as the ruling orthodoxy of the West, the people of Ireland have elected as president a figure promoting Marxism in the name of pacifism. A figure opposed to NATO. A figure condemning the Western defense of Ukraine as "warmongering." A figure supporting the establishment of a Palestinian terror state, supporting the Hamas terror attack on Israel on October 7, 2023, while condemning Israel as a "genocidal" state. A figure supporting the reunification of Ireland as a Marxist People's Republic. Look at Catherine Connolly and hear the voice of the people in the earsplitting tub thumping of global Islam and gender, race and class politics. Endorsed by the Communist Party of Ireland, the Marxist-Leninist Workers' Party, the communist fronts Labor Party, Social Democrats, Green Party and People Before Profits, and by the IRA front Sein Finn, President elect Catherine Connolly is the voice of Marxist and Islamist Ireland on the international stage. Catherine Connolly. The president elect of Ireland promotes far left ideologies in the name of opposing the establishment, when in actual fact these ideologies define the Irish and Western establishments. She proclaims that Hamas and its terror attacks, dedicated to the annihilation of Israel, are a legitimate part of Palestinian life and culture. She proclaims that Israel is a terror state and a rogue state because it is a liberal democratic state which fights the forces of Arab and Muslim terror. She proclaims that the Jewish community in Ireland is not entitled to receive understanding or respect, and is not entitled to flourish or live well, because it supports and represents the liberal capitalist state of Israel. She proclaims that the Hamas torture and killing of innocent people is a necessary condition for Palestinian liberation. She proclaims that a progressive president personifies Marxism, Islam and antisemitism, demonizes Israel, and advocates a holocaust against Jews. She proclaims that a progressive president employs the language of hate, peddles hate nonstop against Israel and Jews, and take her nation into the abyss of moral bankruptcy: "The election of far left, antiestablishment candidate Catherine Connolly as Irish president has split the country, not least its Jewish community. Connolly, who won in a landslide on Saturday, has called Israel a 'terrorist state' and a 'rogue state' on several occasions, and has also said that 'history didn't begin on October 7.' Further, she has stated in the past that Hamas is 'part of the fabric of the Palestinian people.' Wishing her success, the Jewish Representative Council of Ireland congratulated Connolly. It noted that while the presidency is a symbolic position, it nevertheless represents all the people of Ireland. 'The Jewish community in Ireland looks forward to working constructively with the president, as we have with her predecessors, in fostering mutual respect, understanding, and the flourishing of all communities that make up the fabric of Irish life,' said Maurice Cohen, the chair of the JRCI. Ireland's Chief Rabbi Yoni Wieder similarly congratulated Connolly, adding that he hoped she would use the office to 'unite rather than divide,' and promote dialogue, respect and understanding across Irish society. He noted the existence of concerns within the Jewish community about the positions Connolly has taken regarding Hamas. 'She has described it as 'part of the fabric of the Palestinian people,' yet seems entirely untroubled by that reality. She appears not to object to its remaining in power, even as it openly beats and executes its own people. Such views do not reflect the outlook of someone committed to a secure and peaceful future,' Wieder said. 'I would hope that President Connolly will take the opportunity in due course to engage directly with Ireland's Jewish community, hear our concerns, and understand better how the conflict continues to affect our small community here.' However, not everyone was so enthusiastic. 'Catherine Connolly personifies the Irish Left and Sinn Fein's antiIsrael hostility and embraces its narrative, counting amongst her political supporters those who advocate Israel's replacement by a Palestinian state,' Irish lawyer and Ireland's former justice and defense minister Alan Shatter told The Jerusalem Post on Sunday. 'At every available opportunity, she demonizes Israel repeatedly, accusing it of committing genocide in Gaza. [She has] depicted Hamas as 'part of the fabric of Palestinian society' when objecting to the exclusion of Hamas from a future governance of Gaza,' Shatter said. He noted that Connolly has strong support from the 'obsessive, Israel hating Irish social media community and public exhibitionists, including [Marxist musical act] Kneecap.' Shatter added that while the position of president is constitutionally essentially–but not entirely–ceremonial, Connolly's antiIsrael rhetoric will gain a broad audience and possible additional credibility, 'further souring Ireland-Israel relations' and contributing to escalating antisemitism in Ireland. 'She is a product of the Irish government pandering to and adopting the narrative of Israel's most extreme critics and the government parties failing to nominate credible, articulate presidential candidates,' Shatter said. 'As a Jew originally from the Republic of Ireland, I find it saddening but not entirely surprising to see the country and its leadership slide further into this abyss,' James Esses, a former barrister turned psychotherapist, told the Post. 'The previous president used Holocaust Memorial Day to whip up hostility. The new president calls Israel a 'terrorist state' yet has the audacity to legitimize Hamas as 'part of the fabric of the Palestinian people.' It's shameful." (New Irish President Catherine Connolly Draws Backlash Over Past AntiIsrael Remarks by Mathilda Heller). Catherine Connolly. The president elect of Ireland is unique. Her hatred of Israel and Jews are without equal in the history of the nation. Surpassing all her predecessors, she is supercharged with hate toward the people and state representing the only free society existing in the moral desert which is the Middle East. She is opposed to the West Bank settlers because they are expanding freedom into Muslim lands. She proclaims that Israel is guilty of genocide in its war against Hamas because Palestinian terrorists possess human rights, and advocates that the European Union break diplomatic relations with Israel. She condemns Israel for human rights violations but does not condemn Hamas for human rights violations. She proclaims that Israel is an immoral, lawless state and Hamas is a moral, law abiding organization, and a Palestine governed by Hamas would be a moral, law abiding state. She proclaims that Israel starves children in Gaza but Hamas does not torture, rape, mutilate or murder Israelis or inflict a reign of terror on them. She supports the granting of statehood to Palestinian terror. She supports the Hamas terror attacks on Israel on October 7, 2023 on the grounds that Israel, as a Middle East outpost of Western liberal capitalism, is the essence of evil and terror, has oppressed the onslaught of Muslim imperialists and terrorists, and robbed them of their sacred land. She proclaims that Hamas is the essence of virtue and justice and should rule Palestine, Israel, the Middle East, the West and the world: "In recent years the Irish political establishment has consisted of people filled with an antiIsrael animus. The prime minister (Taoiseach) is Micheal Martin. At the UN in September he accused Israel of 'genocide' and claimed that its actions were an 'abandonment of all norms' of international law. He has accused Israel of deliberately starving citizens in Gaza, at a time when the Israel backed Gaza Humanitarian Foundation had already delivered more than 200 million meals to Gazans before ceasing operation. Simon Harris, the former prime minister and now foreign minister and deputy prime minister, joins him in his antiIsrael animus. Harris has, like Martin, accused Israel of 'genocide' and called on the EU to consider breaking ties with the Jewish state. Harris has also called for sanctions against 'West Bank settlers.' As foreign minister, he was the moving force behind Ireland’s recognition of a 'state of Palestine.' Now Catherine Connolly has just been elected as the president of Ireland. And she is even more antiIsrael than Martin and Harris, being unwilling to condemn Hamas for the atrocities it carried out on October 7, 2023. According to Connolly, Israel is not just guilty of a 'genocide' in Gaza; it has always been in its very essence a 'terrorist state.' Neither Martin nor Harris went that far in their condemnation of Israel. She also says that 'history did not begin on October 7,' meaning that with is attacks on that day Hamas was merely resisting Israeli oppression and land theft that had been going on since 1948. She has refused to condemn Harris outright for its tortures, rapes, mutilations, and murders carried out on October 7, and instead of recognizing its reign of terror in Gaza, she has claimed that Hamas is 'part of the fabric of the Palestinian people,' and therefore, she argues, the group ought to take part in the future governance of Gaza, something that the US, Israel, the Arab states, the Palestinian Authority, and most Gazans are dead set against." (Catherine Connolly, New Irish President by Hugh Fitzgerald). Catherine Connolly. During World War II, the IRA asked Hitler to help it drive out the British from Northern Ireland through an invasion by the German army. During Hitler's attack on freedom in mainland Britain, the IRA asked Hitler to help it to destroy freedom in Northern Ireland: "In the summer of 1940, as bombs rained down on London, an Irishman dined in comfort in a Berlin villa under Nazi protection. Sean Russell, a working lass Dubliner turned IRA chief, believed Hitler’s Germany could help deliver Ireland’s independence—an alliance that would define his legacy as both hero and traitor." (The Irishman Who Courted Hitler: Sean Russell’s Deadly Gamble For Freedom by Nickey Dromey). Eighty years after the German-IRA collaboration, Hitler is alive and well in Ireland. His aim has changed in the face of a different request from a different party. In the twenty first century, Hitler is helping Irish President elect Catherine Connolly to kill Jews.

WEIMAR GERMANY, USA

It was doomed from the start. Drawing its name from the city of Weimar in central Germany, it was founded in 1918 after the November Revolution and the abdication of Kaiser Wilhem II. In 1919, the leading lights of the nation assembled to draft a constitution for the new Weimar Republic. These lights included Max Weber, Hugo Preuss, Friedrich Naumann and Friedrich Meinecke, and they established a system of government in which a president, a chancellor and a parliament, called the Reichstag, were dedicated, one and all, to the protection of human liberty. But the Weimar Republic and its shining constitution were planted on alien soil inimical to the cultivation of liberty. They were planted on soil which exalted the enslavement of the individual to the false god of the state. They were planted on soil defined by the famous quote from Georg Wilhelm Friedrich Hegel: Ich bin der Diener der Totality, or I am the servant of the totality. Thus the Weimar Republic, Germany's experiment in human liberty, was doomed from the start, and came to a crashing end with the Adolf Hitler's appointment as chancellor in 1933. In the twenty first century, the nation which led the free world in its struggle against German statism in World War I and II, its struggle against the Communist Bloc in the Cold War, and its struggle against Global Islam in the present day, is descending into the doom of the Weimar Republic and is collapsing into tyranny. The collapse has been over a century in the making and commenced at the dawn of the twentieth century, but in contrast to Weimar, it was not foreordained. It is a product of a general cultural zeitgeist which commenced at the dawn of the twentieth century, a spirit of the times which has rejected reason in favor of religion, and is consuming nation after nation within its vice grip. It is the perennial disease affecting all nations and cultures in a stage of decline, and as it felled ancient Rome with its popular late stage religions of Christianity, caesarism and statism, so it is felling the West in the present day, and is felling the West's beacon and arsenal of liberty. In the twenty first century, the United States of America is descending into mystical collectivism and state worship and the fall is as spectacular as it is terrifying. The global zeitgist bringing the rule of religion and sweeping away the legacies of the Enlightenment have brought three religious movements to prominence in America. One movement was founded during the nineteenth century from the revelations of its prophet Karl Marx, the second was founded during the Christian Dark Ages of the West, and the third was founded during the Weimar Republic itself, and these three movements of antiEnlightenment are sealing the coffin of America. Look at the inroads against America made by the Marxist Left, the Christian Right and the new national socialists, and see a process of national suicide mirror the suicide of the West. The Marxist Left. Look at the Marxist Left and hear it proclaim that a progressive society is run by gender, race, class, culture and sexual orientation activists. It is a Marxist movement which shuts down the government as it basks in the light of media adulation. It is a movement of lawlessness, disorder and civilizational collapse. It is run by Marxist radicals and Marxist money, and is antipolice, antiIsrael and antiAmerica. It strikes fear into the hearts of moderate, centrist, civilized people, demands that they appease it and surrender to it, and will do everything it can to remain in power: "Thirty days into the government shutdown, Representative Claudia Tenney (R-NY) accused Democratic Party chiefs Chuck Schumer and Hakeem Jeffries of surrendering to the Marxist wing led by New York City mayoral candidate Zohran Mamdani—a capitulation she said is now holding the government hostage. Speaking alongside House leadership and fellow New York Republicans on Thursday, the New York congresswoman charged that the Democratic Party has been hijacked by 'Marxist activists' who would 'rather destroy the system than to lose power.' She argued Schumer and Jeffries lack the political courage to confront what she called a 'Marxist, antisemitic, antilaw enforcement base led by Mamdani,' joined by Alexandria Ocasio-Cortez and Bernie Sanders.The Republican lawmaker lambasted Schumer and Jeffries as 'weak leaders from New York where they have never had to face serious political opposition and have enjoyed nothing but glowing praise from their friends in the media,' asserting their failure is 'on dramatic display with each passing day of this tragic shutdown.' The New York congresswoman said Democratic leadership has 'traded true leadership for appeasement, responsibility for disorder, and principle for political survival,' declaring that 'this shutdown is their choice.' Tenney said the two leaders have 'surrendered to radicals funded by dark money groups pushing antipolice, antiIsrael, antiAmerican garbage,' stating flatly, 'and now the country is paying the price.' According to the Republican lawmaker, Schumer and Jeffries 'will not stand up to this movement because they're terrified of it.' She contended that 'they've built their political survival on appeasing the far left—and now our entire country is being held hostage by it.' 'They cannot open the government without angering the radicals who radically run their party,' Tenney continued. 'AntiAmerican ideology is dominating this—and they'd rather destroy the system than to lose power.' " (Representative Tenney Blasts Dem Leaders: Bowed to Mamdani's Marxists—Says Radicals Run the Party, Shutdown Is Their Choice by Joshua Klein). The Christian Right. Look at the Christian Right and see a movement comprised of Evangelical Protestants and traditional Catholics. See it proclaim that society must reject reason in favor of the experience of God. It must reject reason and march under the name of Jesus. It must fall to ground, scream at the heavens and cast out the dark spirits of reason. It must be baptized and born again in the waters of otherworldly mysticism. It must demonize reason and revive the Dark Ages. It must seek to establish a Judeo-Christian nation, culture and values. It must fight against all forms of morality based on reason, and fight in the name of the church of Christian supernatural visions. It proclaims that Christianity must be the state religion, the government must be a Christian government, the rulers of the state must be Christian patriots for God, and this theocracy must eliminate every last trace of liberal democracy without compromise of any kind: "New battle lines are being drawn in the US by a right wing Christian movement set on what it sees as its divine mission--to spread its beliefs and messages using political power. So what is Christian nationalism and why is it flourishing now? Thousands of people hungry for an experience of God and longing to be free of their demons crowded into a large tent for a mass deliverance service. Some fell to the ground and lay still, others screamed as the pastor commanded their dark spirits to come out in Jesus' name. Some just held each other with what seemed relief and release. Afterwards around 20 were baptized in a horse trough filled with water. This is the Global Vision Church near Nashville in Tennessee, headed by Pastor Greg Locke. He is a charismatic and controversial figure who is tapping into a long tradition of Pentecostal revival in the United States, an apocalyptic spirit that is animating the rise of a new Christian right. God and country is one of the oldest and most influential currents in US politics. It ebbs and flows throughout American history. It's at high tide now because conservative Christians feel they're on the losing end of demographic and cultural changes. That's been amplified by a backlash against what they saw as government overreach during the Covid pandemic. 'We desire to live in a Judeo Christian nation with Judeo-Christian values,' says Ken Peters, a socalled Patriot Pastor who preaches that God belongs in government. But this fight against changing moral values is being framed as a battle against evil which demonizes political opponents, says Robert Jones, president of the Public Religion Research Institute (PRRI). With no room for compromise, he believes it poses a fundamental threat to democracy." (Christian Nationalists--Wanting To Put God Into US Government by Barbara Plett Usher). National Socialism. Look at national socialists and see them promote white supremacy and Jew hatred. See them condemn conservatives and libertarians who support Israel because it represents Western liberal values. See them seized by a mental fever, become like rabid dogs, condemn Jews and Israel as the essence of evil because they stand for Western freedom, and target them for total destruction. See them descend into roiling psychoses and hallucinate international Jewish conspiracies and behind the scenes control, and worship Adolf Hitler as their lord and savior. See an agent of moral and spiritual death, a variant of Marxism substituting race hate for class hate, spread into every sector of society and corrode free institutions: "Conservatives are fighting among themselves over the far right commentator Tucker Carlson's decision to interview the antisemitic white supremacist Nick Fuentes on his podcast, where the two men decried conservatives who support Israel. On the podcast, Carlson called out Republicans including Senator Ted Cruz, the former president George W Bush and the ambassador to Israel, Mike Huckabee, for being 'Christian Zionists' who have been 'seized by this brain virus.' 'I dislike them more than anybody,' said Carlson, the former Fox host whose podcast has skewed further to the right during the second Trump term. Fuentes–who used to be ostracized by the mainstream right for his views, including support of Hitler and claims that Jews run the country–said on the podcast that 'organized Jewry' held outsize influence. In remarks to the Republican Jewish Coalition after the podcast aired on Thursday, Cruz said: 'Now is a time for choosing. Now is a time for courage. If you sit there with someone who says Adolf Hitler was very, very cool and their mission is to combat and defeat ‘global Jewry,' and you say nothing, then you are a coward, and you are complicit in that evil.' Cruz also said he had seen more antisemitism on the right in the last six months than he had seen in his entire life, claiming it was a 'poison' and that the party and the country were 'facing an existential crisis.' " (Tucker Carlson's Interview With Far Right Antisemite Nick Fuentes Divides Conservatives by Rachel Leingang). Weimar Germany, USA. America in the twenty first century is being stalked by the horsemen of the apocalypse. They are claiming people's souls and leaving a moral wasteland in their wake. The Marxist Left is the most influential of the Grim Reapers. It has been the ruling orthodoxy in America since the dawn of the twentieth century, rolling up victory after victory, from Theodore Roosevelt's Trust Busting through Franklin Roosevelt's New Deal through John Kennedy's Final Frontier through Lyndon Johnson's Great Society through Barack Obama's Affordable Care Act, and serving to define the nation's cultural and political establishment. The Christian Right began rising in the late 1950s when it took over the American conservative movement, picked up speed in Jerry Falwell's Moral Majority in late 1970s, was further accelerated under the presidency of Ronald Reagan, and saw its greatest victory to date on June 24, 2022. On this day, the United States Supreme Court ruled in Dobbs vs Jackson Women's Health Organization that states have the right to outlaw abortion because the word abortion is not contained in the constitution, because potential human personhood can be held to be equal to actual human personhood, and because the Fourteenth Amendment, stating that only people born can be citizens possessing constitutional rights, does not exist. National Socialism began its rise in 2019 with the formation of the Groyper Army by Nick Fuentes. Goosestepping under the banners of white power, Jew hatred and race socialism, it livestreams and podcasts its fuhrer's fantasies as it declares war on America. In the twenty first century, three horsemen have galloped across the horizon from Weimar Germany and pushed America into free fall.

TRUMP'S FINAL PETITION AGAINST HIS METOO PURSUER

A quintessence is the essence of something in its purest form. Arisotle was the quintessential Greek philosopher, the Eifel Tower is the quintessential souvenir to purchase in Paris, and an old stone cottage is the quintessence of rural England. On November 11, 2025, Donald Trump made a request to the United States Supreme Court to overturn a civil case launched by E. Jean Carroll which is a quintessence. It is the quintessence of a movement founded in 2006 by feminist activist Tarana Burke. Called MeToo and spreading into a viral hashtag in 2017, the movement proclaims that women who make sexual assault allegations must be believed in the absence of evidence, and men who are accused of sexual assault must be punished without due process of law. Made by an accuser who waited more than twenty years to make her accusation, made without eyewitnesses, video evidence or police reports or investigations of any kind, Carroll's accusation that Trump sexually assaulted her is the quintessence of the MeToo movement, the quintessence of a hate movement which has declared war on Western liberal jurisprudence as it seeks to politicize every courtroom in society. On November 11, 2025, Donald Trump utilized his final remaining avenue of appeal to fend off an attack from a neoMarxist movement of gender tribalism which targets the male population for total destruction, a movement whose quintessential voice is E. Jean Carroll. The case against Trump is an indictment of the culture and legal system which allowed it to go forward and impose damages against him, and its success, the success of the MeToo movement, the success of Marxist gender, race and class politics, is the success of a monster mauling civilization apart. E. Jean Carroll. Trump's accuser cannot remember the day, month or year of her alleged assault. She is supported in her case by an antiTrump movement led by far left lawyers and legal commentators, by the Marxist group America Future Republic, and by Democrat Party megadonors financing her. She claims without evidence that Trump followed her into a fitting room at the Bergdorf Goodman department store, pushed her against a wall, pulled down her pants, grabbed her pubic area and raped her. She demands that people believe that there were no customers in the area, no employees in the area, and that the dressing room was unlocked. She demands that people accept that she did not scream. She demands that people believe her story in the absence of eyewitnesses and surveillance video. She claims she was wearing a dress which had not been manufactured at the time. She claims that her dress has existed unworn and unlaundered since the time of the alleged assault but refuses to surrender it to authorities so that Trump's DNA could be checked. She was helped at the trial by the judge who refused to admit the dress as evidence against her. She took her allegation from an episode of the television series Law and Order, which described a rape at Bergdorf Goodman in exactly the same terms. She alleged in a television interview that she was both raped and was not raped, and that she was both assaulted was not assaulted. She was helped at the trial by the judge who refused to allow her contradictions and equivocations to be used as evidence against her: "E. Jean Carroll Hopes Her Explosive Telluride Doc Will 'Finish Off' Donald Trump. That was a blaring headline in Variety from this past weekend. It doesn't matter what is in this documentary or if anyone ever sees it. It will not finish off Trump. Here is why:I spent the last year examining the six major lawfare cases against President Trump in between his two presidential administrations, and the E. Jean Carroll case was easily the most absurd on its face. Key details: in 2019, advice columnist and former Saturday Night Live writer E. Jean Carroll wrote an account in New York magazine alleging that Donald Trump sexually assaulted her in a Bergdorf Goodman department store dressing room in 1995. Or maybe it was 1996. She can't exactly remember. (I regard her inability to remember this detail strike one against her credibility). The details of the former gossip columnist's story are truly stranger than fiction. (Read into my last statement what you will; Carroll has been known to sue for defamation and find endless financial resources to do so.) They are simultaneously maddening and hilarious. I give a full accounting in my New York Times bestselling book, Breaking the Law, but here are key reasons why E. Jean Carroll may get a lot of attention and make a little money, but she will never finish off Donald J. Trump. Carroll waited from 1995 (or was it 1996?) until 2019 to tell her alleged story. She opted not to introduce these allegations during many favorable news environments such as the Bill Clinton sex scandal, Trump's first presidential run, and #MeToo. She finally chose to make claims against Trump in 2019 while she was promoting a book. Yet, I am convinced I've uncovered the real reason why she waited until this precise moment: the urging of George Conway. Yes, the person who orchestrated the entire case was the professional antiTrump legal pundit and bitter exhusband of Trump adviser Kellyanne Conway. George Conway coached Carroll into pursuing a civil trial rather than criminal litigation. Carroll would cop to this on the witness stand. He would go on to champion the case in the press. Conway isn't the only familiar antiTrump name associated with the Carroll cases. The Democrat megadonor Reid Hoffman bankrolled Carroll's efforts. Hoffman hates Trump, saying he would 'spend as much as I possibly can and it takes' to beat him. And he just so happens to have been the one shoveling coal into E. Jean Carroll's engine. Carroll's legal team, led by #MeToo megalawyer Roberta Kaplan, disclosed that they were funded by American Future Republic, a nonprofit primarily backed by Hoffman. All of this reveals the suit was political in nature, which violates due process and equal protection provisions in our US Constitution. Carroll's account of the alleged events strains credulity, to put it mildly. Carroll claimed that Trump followed her into a fitting room at Bergdorf's, shoved her against a wall, pulled down her pants, and forced 'his fingers around my private area.' (Did he grab her by her private area, perhaps? This sounds a lot like the language Trump used on the infamous Access Hollywood tape). Next, Trump 'thrusts his penis halfway—or completely, I'm not certain—inside me,' she claimed. Ah, the old half penis rape. That's definitely a real thing that men do. 'I do not believe he ejaculates,' she said. Thanks for that attentive eye to detail, Jean. From her account of events, we are to believe that there were no other customers around, there were no employees nearby, the dressing room was left unlocked, and Carroll didn't scream. There were no eyewitnesses. There was no surveillance video. And, of course, Trump only use 'half.' Make of this series of claims what you will. In various interviews and in her trial testimony, Carroll emphasized her wardrobe during the alleged event. 'I am wearing a pair of sturdy black patent leather four inch Barneys high heels, which puts my height around six-one, and I try to stomp his foot,' she said. She recreated this exact look for what I'm sure her handlers thought was a badass cover photo that graced New York magazine in 2019, the year she publicly accused Trump. She claims that she was wearing a 'black wool Donna Karan coatdress.' Trump's team (among others) have claimed the dress wasn't even made at the time. Carroll also said, 'The Donna Karan coatdress still hangs on the back of my closet door, unworn and unlaundered since that evening.' Unlaundered? Since the dress was unwashed, surely she offered it up to the authorities so it could be checked for Trump's DNA, right? Apparently not. 'The dress was great,' Trump told me in an interview in 2025. 'The dress was a Monica Lewinsky type dress. Then when they found out there was nothing on the dress, so we wanted the dress, and the judge said 'nope.' We're not going to let you show it.' Trump is correct that Judge Lewis Kaplan would not allow for it to be admitted as evidence. (I recently called on the Trump administration to investigate Judge Kaplan.) This would be a recurring theme of the trial. There is a dress that apparently is in Carroll's possession that could prove Trump did something to her, but she won't produce it. Let that sink it. Her narrative about the events is—not a joke—almost identical to the plot of a 2012 episode of Law & Order: Special Victims Unit. In that episode, titled Theatre and Tricks, one of the characters fantasizes about being raped in the lingerie section of Bergdorf Goodman, exactly where Carroll alleges she was raped by Trump. Carroll testified that she was aware of the episode but hadn't seen it. Yet she claimed she is a fan of Law & Order—but not Law & Order: SVU, which she said was 'too violent.' If Carroll hadn't seen that episode, it might have been because she was spending her time watching The Apprentice, which she raved about on the witness stand. E. Jean Carroll could never decide whether or not to use the R word when it came to Trump. At first, Carroll did not say that she had been raped in court or in media appearances. Her civil complaint does not mention rape. In fact, it focused only on defamation, as the statute of limitations had run out. The word rape does not appear in the complaint. In fact, a bizarre interview with Anderson Cooper on CNN crescendoed to a discussion of why she assiduously avoids calling what Trump did 'rape,' even though she claims he shoved his penis (or was it half his penis?) into her. She prefers the word fight, which she tried to explain as follows: 'CARROLL: The word rape carries so many sexual connotations. This was not. This was not sexual. It just, it hurt. You know. COOPER: I think most people think of rape as, I mean, it is a violent assault. CARROLL: I think most people think of rape as being sexy. COOPER: Let's take a short break. CARROLL: Think of the fantasies.' So, she is saying here that was penetrated against her will, which is a 'fight' and not a rape, because rapes are 'sexy.' Judge Kaplan did not allow for the Cooper interview to be admitted as evidence in court." (E. Jean Carroll Hopes Her Explosive New Doc Will 'Finish Off' Trump; Here's Why That's Absurd by Alexander Marlow). E. Jean Carroll. The Combahee River Collective was a black, feminist, lesbian, Marxist organization active in Boston, Massachusetts from 1974 to 1980. Peddling hatred of whites, males, heterosexuals and the capitalist system, it was an early exemplar of the growing Marxist monster agitating in the name of gender, race, class, culture and sexual orientation, and the organization indeed coined the term identity politics. Its promotion of radical feminism was an inspiration for the formation of the MeToo movement decades later. The voices of the Combahee River Collective and its MeToo movement echo in ear splitting tones in the life of E. Jean Carroll.

MARXIST-MUSLIM MUSHROOM CLOUD POISONS BRITAIN

It was a jewel in the sea shining to the heavens, and the light it shined with was the light of freedom. It was the first industrialized nation in the world, fueling the Industrial Revolution with the furnaces of freedom. From 1700 to 1914, it was the world's foremost power, establishing a Pax Britannica which spread freedom to distant lands backed by the sword. It was the scientific, technological and financial center of the world, and its empire encompassed a quarter of the world's landmass and population, from North America to Australia to New Zealand to Asia to Africa to Central and South America, comprising 460 million people, and was the largest empire in history, leading an empire of freedom such as the world had never seen. Its culture, courts, parliaments and philosophers set forth the principles, constitutions, proclamations, precedents, statutes and case law of freedom which lit up the skies and were beacons of hope for the oppressed everywhere. Man is a free born agent and the individual has a natural, inherent right to be free. Thus was the ethos and politics of this hallowed land, and such was its glory which will live forever in the annals of human progress. In the twenty first century, this land is no more, having been rendered unrecognizable by the actions of its people. In the twenty first century, the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Northern Ireland has morally ceased to exist, battered by an attack by two mass movements in whose canals flow the human bacteria of the world. In the twenty first century, the British people have allowed Marxism and Islam to settle in their land, permanently set up shop, sweep away civilization, and reduce freedom's former empire and commonwealth of nations to a savage jungle. The free fall of Britain in the twenty first century, set into motion by the landslide votes of the majority, has been tragic and terrifying, a hard crash after a screaming descent, mirroring the free fall of the West itself, and inscribing suicide on the tombstone of civilization. Look at these dark pillars of human enslavement, these comrades in arms united against the Enlightenment, and see a present day war against Britain. Marxism and Islam. Britain today has abolished free speech in the name of protecting online safety. It has abolished free speech in the name of fighting fake news. It charges those condemning Marxism or Islam with speech crimes, spreading false communications, spreading disinformation and causing psychological harm. It censors those condeming mass murders committed by Muslim migrants. It beats down those condemning unvetted mass migration with the truncheons of speech codes. It frees real criminals from jails to make room for those exercising their free speech rights and condemning crime waves fueled by Muslims and migrants. It is an authoritarian antifree speech union whose Labor and Conservative parties are dedicated to the criminalization of truth and the enforcement of political correctness: "In vindication of US Vice President JD Vance’s warnings of encroaching authoritarianism in Britain and Europe, a report has found that hundreds of people in the United Kingdom have been charged under the 2023 Online Safety Act, including for spreading 'fake news.' According to Crown Prosecution Service data obtained by The Telegraph in a Freedom of Information request, 292 people in Britain have been charged with speech crimes under the Online Safety Act passed into law by the previous Tory government. Those charged include 23 for ‘illegal false communications,' often referred to as fake news offenses. The controversial clause banned the spreading of socalled disinformation that could lead to 'nontrivial psychological or physical harm.' A conviction under the legislation comes with a maximum penalty of 51 weeks in prison. The report found that several were charged with the offense following the mass stabbing attack at a children’s Taylor Swift dance party in Southport for spreading claims online that the attacker was a Muslim migrant. After initial silence from police in the aftermath of the attack that left three young girls dead, it was later revealed that the attacker, Axel Rudakubana, had been born in the UK to migrant parents from Rwanda and had possession of Islamist jihadi material. Since 2023, at least 67 people have been convicted under speech codes, the first of which came in the wake of the antimass migration riots and protests following the Southport stabbings. At the time, the leftist Labor Party government faced criticism for freeing prisoners to make room in Britain’s overcrowded jail system for people who merely made posts online rather than actually engaging in violence. Conservative peer and founder of the Free Speech Union, Lord Young of Acton, commented: 'The number of people who’ve been charged with this offence is deeply concerning. The problem with trying to criminalize ‘disinformation’ is that it empowers the state to decide what is and isn’t true.' " (UK 1984:

*Hundreds Charged In Britain For Speech Crimes Under Orwellian Online Safety Ac*t by Kurt Zindulka). Marxism and Islam. Britain today is a scene of mass murders committed by enemy aliens allowed in by Marxists marching under the banners of multiculturalism. It is a sinking ship drowning in rivers of blood unleashed by human knives and machetes stamped Afghani, Kurdish and Caribbean. It has renounced the traditional British way of life founded on human rights and the rule of law. It has normalized crime and violence committed with the serrated edges and hooked blades of Muslims and migrants who hate Western liberal democracy. It is a city under attack by black gangs and black turf wars and defended in vain by police barricades. It is a nightmare in which innocent people are invaded, mugged and mutilated by Muslims and migrants on a daily basis. It is a moral sewer filthy with the dirt of Eastern Islam and reeking with the stench of foreign subversion. It is no longer a British city, a Western city or a city of free, law abiding citizens, but is a metropolis of multiculturalism constructed by the voices of Marxist and Muslim mental disorder: "The murder of little children by Alex Rudakubana in Southport, England, on the 29th of July 2024 feels almost like ancient history now. Nearly every day Brits learn of another stabbing of innocent people on the streets of their country by individuals who, well, let's just say aren't wearing corduroys and tweed jackets. A man was murdered and two other civilians (including a child) were injured from knife wounds by an Afghani in Uxbridge at the end of last month. Earlier that month, a gang of Kurdish illegal immigrants roamed Dorset's seaside town of Boscombe attacking people with machetes. This month, an ethnically Caribbean man knifed people on a train pulling into Huntingdon railway station. We have grown accustomed to such violence as an everyday trait of modern British life. A friend of mine who lives in south London was unable to get to his house on the way home from work on two separate occasions this week; police had barriered off the streets on account of knifings on those days. In his area of London, murders occur every single day, carried out with socalled 'zombie knives'—knives with serrated edges and hooked blades, designed to do as much internal injury as possible. 'How can you continue to live there?' I asked my friend. He explained to me that, being white, he deems himself more or less safe given that nearly all these knife attacks have to do with turf wars between black gangs. 'One does, though, need to factor in occasionally getting mugged at knifepoint, which does happen from time to time' he concluded, 'but as long as you hand over your watch, wallet and phone without arguing, you'll generally be okay.' Another friend who lives in a different part of London recently witnessed from his apartment window a machete attack occur which culminated in one fleeing man having his arm entirely hacked off in the middle of the road. These kinds of assaults, even many murders, are frequently not even reported these days; they are now considered par for the course. The fact that London is a hotbed for knife attacks probably shouldn't surprise anyone who has ventured into the capital lately. Much of the city feels like something from Blade Runner or Mad Max. The streets are dirty and smelly, and most people look ill and unhappy. Bar a few famous spots, there is almost nothing about London or its inhabitants that would identify it as an English city, let alone the nation's capital. The third world has been imported into London and now it looks like a third world metropolis, as one would expect." (Time For The UK To Declare A State Of National Emergency? by Sebastian Morello). Marxism and Islam. Britain today is a no go zone overgrown with black, Marxist and Muslim juvenile delinquents. It is no longer a modern city but is a regression into Marxist and Muslim medievalism. It is an African army whose children, soldiers and black boys and girls are walking knife attacks before which ordinary, decent citizens have armed themselves, hidden themselves and fled for their lives: "With 53,000 knife attacks in England and Wales over the past year alone, around 31% of which took place in the London area, it is understandable that ordinary, decent citizens feel unsafe. Lately, an alarming number of people—people I would not have expected—have disclosed to me personally that they now carry concealed weaponry at all times. Let that sink in: ordinary, decent people are now carrying concealed weapons to protect themselves against the concealed weapons of miscreants. Welcome to modern Britain. One friend told me that, not long ago, he was sitting on a London bus when a small group of black youths ranging from around seven to seventeen years of age came onboard; the youngest drew out a knife from his trouser pocket and passed it to the eldest. (I'm told that such African style 'child soldier' recruitment is one way that London gangs prevent knives from being taken by police, as the youngest child is often not searched). Having been passed the knife, the eldest of the group proceeded to stab another black boy on the bus whilst the rest of the passengers screamed and ran for the door. My friend explained that this event is what inspired him henceforth to carry a concealed weapon for protection." (Time For The UK To Declare A State Of National Emergency? by Sebastian Morello). Marxism and Islam. During the British Empire, during the age when it was the greatest liberator of savages and subhumans in the history of mankind, it was said that the sun never set on this global torch of freedom. In the twentieth century, the British people constructed a monster which took hold of this sun and sent it hurtling into darkness. This monster was Marxism and it set into motion the movement of socialism and the welfare state which declared war on one thousand years of British traditions and institutions. In the twenty first century, it joined forces with a fellow monster, this one from the East but growing fast, in its fight to destroy British freedom. This monster is called Islam. Muslim controlled families, schools, offices, businesses, villages, cities and countrysides. Muslims gathering with faces covered, carrying Hamas flags, chanting Allahu Akhbar, and spreading Muslim madness through megaphones to lands far and wide. This is Britain in the twenty first century, a scene of rampaging monsters consuming liberal democracy.

BRITAIN'S GLOBAL MARXIST TRANSMITTER

On November 14, 1922, the skies over Chelmsford began to crackle and thunder. On this day, the capital of Essex County, Chelmsford made history when the British Broadcasting Company, as it was then known, began the first ever daily radio broadcasts. They started at 6 PM and consisted of a news bulletin followed by a weather forecast. They were read twice, once fast and once slowly, so that listeners could take careful notes. This set the stage for a commitment to accuracy and fairness for which the broadcaster would be esteemed for decades. The British Broadcasting Corporation, the oldest, largest and most prestigious broadcaster in the world, established under a royal charter with a mission to "act in the public interest, serving all audiences through the provision of impartial, high quality and distinctive output and services which inform, educate and entertain," for decades the global broadcast voice of British life, culture and freedom, has fallen into disgrace in the twenty first century. Its microphones, studios and transmitting towers have been taken over by a zeitgeist which has destroyed British freedom as it has destroyed freedom in the West, and in the twenty first century, the British Broadcasting Corporation, now acting under a new charter from caesar's mobs, has rejected its founding charter to deliver impartial and high quality services, and been transformed into a global propaganda operation poisoning the internet and airwaves. In the twenty first century, the British Broadcasting Corporation, headquartered in the iconic Broadcasting House in London, has charged its 22,000 worldwide employees with a mission to spread a worldwide mob religion known as Marxism into every corner of radio, television and online space, and bring down the overthrow of Enlightenment traditions and institutions. The twenty first century hijacking of the BBC by Marxism has been condemned by employees who quit the organization in disgust. Listen to Peter Sissons, news presenter from 1989 to 2009, condemn the Marxist building blocks of the BBC: "At the core of the BBC, in its very DNA, is a way of thinking that is firmly of the left." (When One Door Closes). Listen to Andrew Marr, political editor of BBC News from 2000 to 2005, condemn the partisanship, partiality, city mobism and cultural Marxism on offer at the BBC: "The BBC is not impartial or neutral. It's a publicly funded, urban organization with an abnormally large number of young people, ethnic minorities, and gay people. It has a liberal [Marxist] bias, not so much a party political bias. It is better expressed as a cultural liberal [Marxist] bias." (The BBC's Commuitment To Bias Is No Laughing Matter by Tom Leonard). The BBC Today. Look at the BBC today and see a news source trusted to deliver Marxist news and deliver nothing else. See a broadcasting legend reject neutrality, objectivity and good reporting and assault its audience with a Marxist propaganda system. See it reject traditional editorial guidelines and standards in favor of Marxist special pleading. See it reject truthful reportage in favor of Marxist splicing and sequencing. See it feed objective facts into a Marxist tearing and crushing machine. See it put words into the mouths of public figures it hates, such as Donald Trump, seeking to destroy them by misleading viewers and listeners. See it present antiTrump coverage in a campaign against conservative and libertarian views. See it censor the opponents of transgenderism and proclaim the people can change into the opposite sex by a simple act of identification and by dressing up as members of the opposite sex, and proclaim that men can breastfeed babies. See it take the side of Hamas, exalt Hamas as a defender of human rights, justify Hamas terror attacks on Israel, deny the existence of Israeli victims of terror, and portray Israel as an outlaw, aggressor nation. See it reject nonpartisan investigations and fabricate war crimes committed by Israel. See it platform the voices of anticapitalism, antiliberalism, antizionism and antisemitism. See it present proMarxist documentaries, proHamas documentaries and proterror documentaries on the British taxpayers' dime. See it promote Marxist attitudes and worldviews in the name of balance, fairness and truth. See it platform the voices of Arabic, Muslim, Jihadist and antiWestern culture. See it exalt as heroes Palestinian gunman who kill innocent Israeli civilians. See it condemn Jews and Israelis as subhuman devils. See it portray protests against unvetted mass migration as racist, fascist and national socialist. See a broadcaster which once engaged in honest and accurater reportage captured by politics and ideology, and peddle conspiracies, disinformation, drag queens and doctored news: "Remember when the BBC was a trusted source of news? Remember when it was world renowned as a neutral, objective outlet that set the global standard for good reporting? Sadly, it’s been a while since this was the case. Today, the BBC is more akin to a propaganda apparatus than a news broadcaster—a blow made even worse by the fact that it’s funded by the British taxpayer. The latest scandal revolves around a dossier, compiled last month by Michael Prescott, former adviser to the BBC’s Editorial Guidelines and Standards Committee (EGSC), and recently seen by the Telegraph. One of the most egregious examples of bias highlighted in the report is that of a Panorama documentary aired last year, shortly before the US presidential elections. The program featured a speech by now President Donald Trump appearing to encourage the January 6th Capitol Hill riot in 2021. In the footage, it looks like Trump tells his supporters, 'We’re going to walk down to the Capitol and I’ll be with you and we fight. We fight like hell and if you don’t fight like hell, you’re not going to have a country anymore.' In reality, this sequence was created by splicing clips together, combining footage from the beginning of a speech with something Trump said almost an hour later. He had actually encouraged people 'to peacefully and patriotically make your voices heard.' The dossier describes the video as having been 'mangled' in order to make Trump 'say things [he] never actually said,' and, as a result, 'completely misled' viewers. This deception was apparently raised to BBC managers, but they 'refused to accept there had been a breach of standards.' Prescott warned BBC chairman Samir Shah that the Panorama documentary was setting a 'very, very dangerous precedent,' but he received no response. Indeed, Prescott sent the dossier to the BBC Board because repeated warnings to the EGSC were 'dismissed or ignored.' The Panorama documentary is by no means the only example of the BBC’s shocking bias. In the run up to last year’s US election, the state broadcaster falsely reported that Trump was encouraging violence against his Republican critic, Liz Cheney. BBC News presenters claimed that he 'wants people to shoot Liz Cheney in the face' and that he said, 'Liz Cheney should face a firing squad.' This can only be chalked up to a deliberate misunderstanding of Trump’s actual words. In November last year, he criticized Cheney for being a 'radical war hawk' and suggested, 'Let’s put her with a rifle standing there with nine barrels shooting at her. Let’s see how she feels about it, you know, when the guns are trained on her face.' His point being not that he wanted to put Cheney in front of a firing squad, but simply that 'they’re all war hawks when they’re sitting in Washington in a nice building.' This very simple argument was apparently lost on the BBC and its North America

editor, Sarah Smith, who accused Trump of 'ratcheting up the violent rhetoric' and of suggesting 'that one of his political opponents should face guns, have them trained on her face.' This is only the tip of the iceberg. Prescott's dossier reportedly also includes evidence that the BBC has been engaging in 'effective censorship' in its coverage of the transgender debate and that its BBC Arabic service was biased in its coverage of the Israel-Hamas war. Specifically, the broadcaster apparently chose to 'minimize Israeli suffering' in order to 'paint Israel as the aggressor.' In June last year, the BBC published two articles about mass graves being discovered at the Al-Nasa and Al-Shifa hospitals in Gaza. The reporting strongly suggested that the Israeli Defense Forces had committed war crimes at the site, despite evidence existing to the contrary. According to the dossier, it was far more likely that the graves were dug by Palestinians and that the bodies found there were the remains of people who had died before the IDF had even arrived. Prescott argues that this was not an innocent mistake. He writes that any allegation made against Israel was routinely 'raced to air' without proper fact checking, either out of carelessness or 'a desire always to believe the worst about Israel.' Nor did the BBC adequately vet its reporters in Gaza. Prescott's memo revealed that BBC Arabic was regularly platforming proHamas and antisemitic journalists. One reporter, who was featured on the channel hundreds of times, once wrote on Facebook that he wanted Jews to be burned 'as Hitler did, but this time we won't have a single one of you left.' Another regular BBC Arabic reporter praised a Palestinian gunman who murdered four Israeli civilians and a police officer as a 'hero.' A third reporter, who described Israelis as less than human and Jews as 'devils,' appeared on BBC Arabic no less than 500 times and was featured on the channel as recently as this April." (The Demise of the BBC by Lauren Smith). The BBC Today. It was called the People's Receiver 301, the number being a reference to January 30, the date Adolf Hitler was appointed chancellor of Germany. On this pioneering, low cost radio, only government controlled station were marked and listeners could receive nothing else. On either side of the tuner was the nation's coat of arms, an eagle and a swastika, and the medium it received, the new medium of radio, was an integral part of the Third Reich's propaganda machine. In the twenty first century, the BBC has retooled the People's Receiver 301 into a set to receive the messages of Marxism and nothing else. In 1936, a German propaganda poster proclaimed: "All of Germany hears the Fuhrer with the People's Receiver." In the twenty first century, the zeitgeist has elevated another version of Marxism into a global power. In the twenty first century, all of the world, in all communications media, across radio, television and the internet, listens to its fuhrers promote gender, race, class, culture and sexual orientation politics over the BBC.

MARXISTS, CHRISTIANS AND FASCISTS ON THE MARCH

Nature abhors a vacuum. This principle of common sense was first stated by Aristotle, who reasoned that since the void is nothing, and since there is no nothing, there is no void, and everywhere there is something. In the field of human society and culture, this principle is as valid as it is in nature, and it is true, terrifyingly true, that in the declining stages of civilization, when the masses drop one religion, they follow another, when they end the worship of one god, they commence the worship of another, and are never without some form of religion. It is true, terrifyingly true, that in the declining stages of civilization, the masses have rejected reason and created an intellectual void which is constantly filled by religion. In the declining stages of Classical civilization, when the Roman masses rejected pagan reason, they embraced the religions of statism, socialism, caesarism and Christianity, and on their gravestones was inscribed the victory of religion and barbarism. Eighteen hundred years after the legalization of Christianity by Emperor Constantine, marking the beginning of the end of Classical civilization, in the present day culture of the West, the masses have once again rejected reason. The rejection commenced in the twentieth century and has been bearing bitter fruit ever since. In the twentieth century, the Western masses created an intellectual void and for over a century have been filling it with all manner of demons.

These demons crowd the stage of history, vie for power and influence, and have brought the West full circle and returned it to the Dark Ages, but with a new stock of players now. The twentieth century saw the onset of an age of second religiousness, and for over a century, the West has been descending into a maelstrom of insanity, and has pushed the legacies of the Enlightenment, the traditions of reason, empiricism and science, into the dustbin of history. Look at the belief systems the masses have elevated to power and influence in place of reason, look at the institutionalization of religion in place of the Enlightenment, and hear the hoofbeats of the apocalypse shatter civilization. Religion. Look at Marxists promote mass unvetted, illegal immigration and the dissolution of national borders. Look at them declare war on border enforcement, customs enforcement and law enforcement. Look at them promote agendas seeking to defund the police, abolish private property and tax the producers of wealth out of existence. Look at them promote the politics of gender, race, class, culture and sexual orientation, following the logic of Marxist tribalism, in a neoMarxist, neocommunist campaign to overthrow America, Europe and liberal democracy. Look at them promote the gender ideology insanity of transgenderism, which proclaims that sex chromosomes, discovered in 1905 by Nettie Stevens and Edmund Wilson, do not exist or play no role in human sex determination, and human sex can be changed by medical intervention or by a simple declaration and belief that one is a member of the opposite sex. Look at them join hands with Islam and promote Hamas terror attacks and the annihilation of Israel. Look at them reject moderation, peddle extremism, and seek to burn down free institutions with the gasoline soaked pages of the twenty first century, multitribalist, identity politics edition of the Communist Manifesto: "Wisconsin's Democrat congressional candidate Rebecca Cooke endorsed socialist Muslim Zohran Mamdani in New York City's mayoral race but refuses to say if she plans to invite Mamdani to Wisconsin to campaign with her. Footage has surfaced of Cooke saying that she would have supported Mamdani if she had a vote in New York City's election. She has also backed Mamdani's policies, including his opposition to Immigration and Customs Enforcement (ICE) targeting and arresting criminal illegal immigrants. 'Rebecca Cooke can't run away from her endorsement of Socialist Zohran Mamdani and their radical agenda that defunds the police, abolishes private property, and raises taxes on hardworking families,' National Republican Congressional Committee (NRCC) spokesman Zach Bannon said in a statement. 'Communist Cooke doesn't represent Wisconsin values, and voters will once again reject her extremism at the ballot,' he added. This comes as the NRCC outlined its intention to make every Democrat up for reelection in battleground districts own their party's embrace of Marxism with the rise of Mamdani. 'Hakeem Jeffries' endorsement of Zohran Mamdani confirms what NRCC polling and research already showed: the Democratic Party has been hijacked by the radical left,' the NRCC said in a memo on October 28: 'Mamdani is a socialist hostile to America, supports an agenda ripped directly from the pages of the Communist Manifesto, is openly antipolice, and is funded by groups with ties to terrorist organizations like Hamas. His platform, defunding police, raising taxes, and embracing socialism, is out of step with what the American people want and need. With his endorsement, Jeffries endorsed every plank in this platform and exposed his vulnerable Frontline members to the political fallout from it. Every House Democrat owns Mamdani's antiAmerican agenda, and the NRCC will weaponize it against them.' House Speaker Mike Johnson (R-LA) has also pointed to the fact that the Democrat party has been taken over by the radical left. 'This morning, you saw the headline, former Speaker Nancy Pelosi has now announced her retirement this morning. That is a very important sign that I hope that you all will delve into. Even the famous San Francisco liberal is not far left enough for the neoMarxist,' the Speaker observed, pointing out that even Democrats who campaigned on being moderate are now forced to deal with the radical wing of their party, which is taking over. Those moderate Democrats, he continued, are 'no match for the coming communist wave taking over their party.' democratic institutions. See it seek to imprison the state within the confines of the church. See it promote theocracy in the name of conservatism. See it seek to take over politics, the public sphere and the private sphere with totalitarian jackboots stamped Christian identity. See it seek to criminalize abortion on the grounds that actual human personhood is a mystical quality which appears at the moment of conception, and those who do not see this mystical quality are blind, and they are blind because they have eyes. See it seek to restrict immigration by Muslims, not on the grounds that Muslims are opposed to Western liberal democracy, because the Christian Right is opposed to it as well, but because Muslims, like liberal democrats, reject Christianity. See it seek to abolish gay and lesbian rights because the Bible commands heterosexuality and condemns homosexuality. See it reject reason, science, empiricism and the rights, freedoms and dignity of the individual in the name of social, cultural and political Christianity: "The Christian Right pursues strategies that aim to influence and even radically change the liberal democratic consensus that has shaped European politics in the last decades. In particular, they contest the role of religion in society and politics as a matter of identity. Contrary to the doctrine of the separation of church and state in the United States, European states maintain a variety of church–state relationships. While many states have gone through processes of secularization, some states maintain forms of cooperation between church and state, and some have state churches. Whatever the arrangements are, all examples of the Christian Right take issue with the status quo of religion–state relations. Usually, they consider the existing arrangement as too lenient, view the relationship between religion and the state as too close, criticize the churches for being too liberal and for making too many compromises with the secular part of society, and work toward strengthening the status and visibility of their Christian identity in politics and the public sphere. For the most part, the groups aim at altering the liberal democratic framework in their respective countries, as they consider it too progressive, too liberal, and too secular. Others seek to maintain the status quo and prevent future change in situations where conservative policies are in place. The following are examples of the strategies and goals of the Christian Right: preventing or dismantling legislation on sexual and reproductive rights; demanding and implementing restrictive migration policies, especially with regard to Muslim immigrants; and demanding a privileged and visible role for cultural Christianity in the public sphere." (The Christian Right In Europe edited by Gionathan Lo Mascolo). Religion. Look at fascists reject liberal democracy in the name of racism, antisemitism and white supremacy. Look at them proclaim that the sole legitimate demographic is the white demographic, and the sole legitimate culture is white culture. Look at them proclaim that all the evils, ills and revolting things in the world are the products of a Jewish world conspiracy, and this must be exterminated. Look at them proclaim that a true America and a true Europe is a white, Jew hating America and Europe. Look at them proclaim that Western liberal Enlightenment institutions must be smashed with the cudgels of tribal power, white power, antiJewish power and Hitler power: "As quickly as hotel security removed white supremacist Nick Fuentes from CPAC 2023, the Groyper found another receptive audience for his antisemitism and racism. The Fuentes Rally took place on March 4, 2023, at Marriott's Residence Inn at the National Harbor in Maryland. Groypers believe they are fighting against demographic and cultural changes that are destroying the 'true America'—a white, Christian nation. Fuentes' hour long speech stuck close to those themes, listing off societal 'ills' that need to be 'eradicated' from the United States. Fuentes, who kicked off his rant by announcing, 'I love you, and I love Hitler,' also targeted 'Talmudic Jews,' a white supremacist and antisemitic term for Jewish people. While insisting that he doesn't want to hurt anyone, Fuentes said Talmudic Jews need to either leave the county or be converted. Following the event, influential Groyper Clodfelter took to Telegram to praise for Fuentes' speech: 'Talmudic Judaism has entrenched itself in the highest echelons of power all over the world, replacing what was once beautiful with something disgusting.' " (Fuentes Delivers Antisemitic, Christian Nationalist Rant to Fellow White Supremacists, Anti Defamation League, July 8, 2021). Religion. Horror Vacui. The horror of the vacuum. There exists no void in nature. In the fields of mental illness and cultural degeneration, there as well exists no void. The masses need religion and religion is what they will always vote for in place of reason. When they abandon one religion, they do not embrace reason, but run into the arms of another religion. In the West in the twenty first century, the masses have three favorite religions: the Marxist religion worshiping a god called the Collective; the fascist religion worshiping an officially antiMarxist god called the Collective, but a god derived from Marxism; and the Christian religion worshiping a god called God in Heaven. They have sent these gods on the march, storming the ramparts of civilization.

AMERICA'S REDS MOVE AGAINST HOMES

The American Dream: that dream of a land in which life should be better and richer and fuller for everyone, with opportunity for each according to ability or achievement. It is not a dream of motor cars and high wages merely, but a dream of social order in which each man and each woman shall be able to attain to the fullest stature of which they are innately capable, and be recognized by others for what they are, regardless of the fortuitous circumstances of birth or position. (The American Dream by James Truslow Adams). The American Dream. The traditional national belief of America that every person has the freedom to succeed and achieve a good life, both materially and spiritually. A traditional part of the American Dream was home ownership. It was the belief that every person has the freedom to achieve upward mobility by dint of ability, achievement and hard work in a capitalist society without legal barriers. In the twenty first century, this shining dream has been placed under attack by a cultural and political establishment opposed to traditional American freedom, opportunity and capitalism, an establishment which does not want the American people to own their own homes. This attack has been intensifying for the past one hundred years; it is as old as the official establishment of American statism in the early twentieth century; and it has reached its culmination in the present day, the result of a set of policies, plans, regulations and restrictions which have placed home ownership out of the reach of ordinary Americans. America Today. In America today, mass illegal migration and the dissolution of national borders has made the demand for housing skyrocket, leading to skyrocketing house prices. Environmental regulations, such as prohibitions of gas stoves established by Joe Biden, have increased the costs of building houses. Zoning restrictions have prevented housing construction on lands where they should be constructed, leading to supply shortages and high prices. People are subjected to social engineering to suppress their impulses of freedom to buy their own homes. People are taught that the path to human happiness and fulfilment lies in renting apartments and rejecting the supreme manifestation of the right to private property. It lies in rejecting the ownership of one's own home: "It’s harder than ever to buy a home, thanks to immigration, environmental regulations and zoning restrictions. The word crisis gets used too often, but housing certainly qualifies. 'I bought my first condo in the early 1990s in Washington, DC. Paid $115,000 for it. It was in McLean, Virginia, a nice area, and it was three times my income,' says Peter Schweizer, host of The DrillDown podcast. 'How many people today could say they can take their income, triple it, and buy a house for that price?' Housing costs have risen for many reasons, but immigration is a big factor. Since 1995, immigrants to the US have risen by about 30 million people and now account for 15.8 percent of the population, according to Pew Research. That adds demand for housing. Environmental restrictions and zoning restrictions are another large factor. A recent study quantified their effects on housing prices. In San Francisco, as the hosts note, restrictive zoning laws added $400,000 to the cost of a home. 'In Seattle, Los Angeles, New York City, it’s much better: it’s only $200,000 added to the costs there,' Schweizer adds. Environmental regulators, they point out, have long been opposed to single family homes. 'They don’t want people living in single family homes. They want us to live in apartments. They want them in condos,' [cohost] Eric Eggers says. 'The Venn diagram of people who push for environmental regulations and more lax immigration policies is significant. There’s a lot of overlap there.' 'The cost of building a home has certainly increased. Lumber and labor get more expensive, but costs have increased much more. That's because of these regulation restrictions,' says Schweizer. 'Joe Biden had this push—he didn't want homes to have gas.' Biden's Environmental Protection Agency made a push against gas stoves. That regulation alone, Schweizer says, added about $15,000 to the costs of building a home. Home ownership is a huge part of the American Dream, and it is foundational to so many things Americans strive to create. Pride of ownership, a stake in one's community, and as a place to raise children. In fact, a recent study actually correlated higher rents to fertility decline. Is this on purpose? If so, why? The hosts remind viewers of the infamous pronouncement from the World Economic Forum that by 2030, 'You'll own nothing and be happy.' This is a classic means of social engineering. 'People who don't own are more vulnerable,' Schweizer says. 'The biggest investment most people have is their home, and if you take that away they are more vulnerable.' Eggers adds that 'sovereignty is an American value.' For the Trump administration, addressing 'affordability' issues has clearly become the message learned from the election losses in New York, Virginia, and New Jersey. Schweizer believes, for instance, that Trump should frame his deportations of illegal immigrants as easing housing shortages and prices. He should shift focus to affordability and building. This works two ways, both by positioning Trump's policies as helping to lower costs and by shifting attention to states like California where housing costs are extremely high because of regulations and restrictions imposed by the liberal [leftist] government of Governor Gavin Newsom, who is planning to run for President in 2028. 'Gavin Newsom needs to be called out on why things are so unaffordable in California and it is precisely because of the big hand of government that their housing costs are so astronomically high,' Schweizer adds." (Peter Schweizer: Immigration And Climate Activists Want A Nation Of Renters, Breitbart News, November 12, 2025). America Today. America today is in the grip of a global movement seeking to abolish the right to private property and the right to own a home. Led by the World Economic Forum, this movement promotes communism in the name of giving people everything they need, from transportation to accommodation to food to mass communication, and giving it to them as a human right. In the name of establishing efficient, organized and convenient public transportation. In the name of abolishing traffic congestion. In the name of walking, hiking, biking, exercising, cooking, drawing, growing plants, elevating the soul, communing with nature and being with one's friends. In the name of producing durable, repairable and reusable consumer products. In the name of making the best use of free spaces. In the name of achieving clean air, clean water, clean energy and clean factory production. In the name of establishing special sanctuaries and protected areas of nature. In the name of clearing out kitchens cluttered with pasta makers, crepe cookers, stoves and refrigerators. In the name of curing diseases, assisting refugees, calming social unrest, alleviating unemployment, rolling back urban concrete jungles, and reversing climate change and environmental degradation. It promotes communism because when people own nothing, they have everything and need nothing. It promotes communism and abolishes freedom and privacy in the name of achieving human moral perfection and the good life for man: "Welcome to the year 2030. Welcome to my city—or should I say, 'our city.' I don't own anything. I don't own a car. I don't own a house. I don't own any appliances or any clothes. It might seem odd to you, but it makes perfect sense for us in this city. Everything you considered a product, has now become a service. We have access to transportation, accommodation, food and all the things we need in our daily lives. One by one all these things became free, so it ended up not making sense for us to own much. First communication became digitized and free to everyone. Then, when clean energy became free, things started to move quickly. Transportation dropped dramatically in price. It made no sense for us to own cars anymore, because we could call a driverless vehicle or a flying car for longer journeys within minutes. We started transporting ourselves in a much more organized and coordinated way when public transport became easier, quicker and more convenient than the car. Now I can hardly believe that we accepted congestion and traffic jams, not to mention the air pollution from combustion engines. What were we thinking? Sometimes I use my bike when I go to see some of my friends. I enjoy the exercise and the ride. It kind of gets the soul to come along on the journey. Funny how some things seem never seem to lose their excitement: walking, biking, cooking, drawing and growing plants. It makes perfect sense and reminds us of how our culture emerged out of a close relationship with nature. In our city we don't pay any rent, because someone else is using our free space whenever we do not need it. My living room is used for business meetings when I am not there. Once in awhile, I will choose to cook for myself. It is easy—the necessary kitchen equipment is delivered at my door within minutes. Since transport became free, we stopped having all those things stuffed into our home. Why keep a pasta maker and a crepe cooker crammed into our cupboards? We can just order them when we need them. This also made the breakthrough of the circular economy easier. When products are turned into services, no one has an interest in things with a short life span. Everything is designed for durability, repairability and recyclability. The materials are flowing more quickly in our economy and can be transformed to new products pretty easily. Environmental problems seem far away, since we only use clean energy and clean production methods. The air is clean, the water is clean and nobody would dare to touch the protected areas of nature because they constitute such value to our well being." (Welcome To 2030. I Own Nothing, Have No Privacy, And Life Has Never Been Better by Ida Auken, World Economic Forum, November 12, 2016). America Today. During the mid nineteenth and early twentieth centuries, the Statue of Liberty in New York Harbor was the first view of America for immigrants. Called Liberty Enlightening The People, this colossal classical sculpture of a robed and crowned woman, inspired by the Roman goddess Libertas, and given as a gift to America by France, has been disgraced by one hundred years of socialism and welfare statism in America beginning in the twentieth century. In the twenty first century, this movement of antiliberty is reaching its final frontier and abolishing home ownership.

HIGH POTENCY DRUG: KANT AND CANNABIS

When it happened, I was in the kitchen, since it was my turn to make breakfast for the company that morning. I was wearing a light housecoat, colored red and white and had a scarf tied about my head. When a sudden white light filled the room, my first reaction was that the hot water boiler must have exploded. I immediately lost consciousness. When I came to, I was in darkness and I gradually became aware that I was pinned beneath the ruins of the house. When I tried to work my way free, I realized that apart from my small panties, I was entirely naked. I ran my hand over my face and back: I was uninjured! Only my hands and legs were slightly scratched. I ran just as I was to the river, where everything was in flames. I jumped into the water and floated downstream. After a few hundred yards, some soldiers fished me out. (Children Of The Ashes: The Story Of A Rebirth by Robert Jungk, quoting Midori Naka). She would be dead eighteen days later. Midori Naka, famous Japanese stage actress, struck by the atomic bombing of Hiroshima on August 6, 1945, was the first person in the world to die of radiation poisoning. The onset of radiation poisoning occurs within days of exposure, with symptoms including nausea, vomiting, skin burns and loss of appetite, after which the symptoms become worse, and include infections, bleeding, dehydration and confusion, and are followed by death. In 1781, a mental atomic bomb exploded in the West and immediately began poisoning people far and wide. The symptoms of the mental poisoning intensified over the decades, mental nausea culminating in psychotic breakdown, and in the twentieth century, they led to the moral and spiritual death of the culture. This bomb was a nine hundred page treatise written by the most influential and discussed philosopher in modern times. The philosopher was Immanuel Kant, and his treatise was the Critique Of Pure Reason. He was born during the Enlightenment but was not a thinker of the Enlightenment, and his book was an open declaration of war against its foundations. In common with ancient Classical Apollonian culture, the Western Enlightenment stood for the principles of reason, truth, objectivity, empiricism and science, and affirmed, as human insanity demands, the existence of physical objects. Rejecting Classical culture and rejecting the Enlightenment, Kant proclaimed his terrifying mission which sane people could scarcely believe when they read it. It was a mission which raised a clarion call to the psychotics of the world to rise up and storm the ramparts of civilization as it sought to end the Enlightenment and return the West back to its antiClassical, Faustian, subjectivist roots. Appearing in his masterwork, it stated: "I have found it necessary to deny knowledge in order to make room for faith." To deny knowledge: no more braken a statement of psychosis had ever been uttered in the West, and it encapsulated the antiClassical, Faustian, subjectivist character of the West as nothing else had. Look at the atomic bomb exploded by Kant in the late eighteenth century and look at a sympton of severe mental poisoning which felled the West in the mid twentieth century and is intensifying by the hour in the present day, and see an illustration of the truth that ideas have consequences presented in stark, vivid, violent terms. The Bomb. Listen to Kant proclaim a falsehood, that knowledge is derived independently of experience, and on the basis of that falsehood, deduce another falsehood, that all knowledge is impossible and metaphysics, the study of reality at the deepest level, is a fiction: "By a 'critique of pure reason' I mean a critique of the faculty of reason in respect of the knowledge after which it strives independently of all experience, and I aim to decide on the possibility or impossibility of metaphysics." (Critique Of Pure Reason). Listen to Kant proclaim that the principle of human sanity and common sense, the principle that consciousness is the consciousness of something, perception is the perception of something and knowledge is the knowledge of something, has no basis in reality. It must be replaced by the principle that man is blind whenever he sees and is blind because he has eyes, that man perceives nothing, knows nothing and is unconscious, and that man is not cognizer but a creator of reality: "Hitherto it has been assumed that all our knowledge must conform to objects. But all attempts to extend our knowledge of objects by establishing something in regard to them apriori, by means of pure ideas independently of experience, have on this assumption ended in failure. We must therefore find out whether we may not have more success in the tasks of metaphysics if we suppose that objects must conform to our knowledge." (Critique Of Pure Reason). Listen to Kant proclaim that the world of space, time and physical objects is unreal and a product of human perception, and the sane, common sense doctrine of realism has no basis in reality: "I understand by the idealism of all appearances the doctrine that they are all together to be regarded as mere representations and not things in themselves, and accordingly that time and space are subjective forms of perception and not determinations given for themselves or conditions of objects as things in themselves. To this idealism is opposed realism, which regards space and time as something given in themselves (independent of perception)." (Critique Of Pure Reason). The Sickness. Now look at a symptom of severe mental poisoning which commenced in the 1960s, two and half centuries after the appearance of Kant's magnum opus. Kant's doctrine that perception does not perceive reality but creates it, and the world of physical objects is a veil of illusion, led to the widespread use and normalization of perception altering drugs in the 1960s, a logical consequence of the reigning Kantian subjectivism. If perception does not perceive reality but instead creates reality, then perception can be manipulated to create an infinite number of alternate realities, and the means of manipulation can be drugs. So the line of reasoning ran when a drug culture arose in the 1960s, fueled by a late Western subjectivist culture and zeitgesit whose brazen progenitor was Kant. The drug culture which emerged in the 1960s sanctioned an attempt to escape from reality and to create alternate realities in the name of the denial of the possibility of knowledge first proclaimed by Kant, for this drug culture, and the zeitgeist on which this culture was based, could have come from nowhere else but Kant. The decades since the emergence of the drug culture have seen an intensification of the poisoning wrought by the Kantian atomic bomb, and seen civilization reduced to a drug den, crack house and shooting gallery, and collapse into drug fueled violence. These decades have seen an acceleration of cannabis use and addiction, reaching into every age level and occupational sector of society. An acceleration of cannabis perpetrated permanent mental harm. An acceleration of cannabis induced psychoses and all manner of mental disorders. An acceleration of a cannabis induced breakdown of public health. An acceleration of cannabis hospitalization, creating a new branch of psychiatry called cannabis psychiatry. An acceleration of cannabis psychiatric admissions which have straitjacketed a generation: "Germany has recorded a sharp rise in cannabis related psychiatric cases in the year since Olaf Scholz's government legalized the drug, according to new medical data that challenges the coalition's promise of 'harm reduction.' A study by the Psychiatric Clinics of Swabia shows a 40% increase in disorders linked to cannabis use since the law came into force on April 1, 2024, along with a near doubling of cannabis induced psychoses. The study, by the Psychiatric Clinics of Swabia (Bavaria), published in Deutsches Ärzteblatt International, analyzed adult hospital admissions between April 2022 and April 2025. The research, covering six hospitals responsible for psychiatric care in a region of 1.9 million inhabitants, found a 40% increase in disorders related to cannabis consumption after legalization. Even more alarming, psychoses induced by the drug almost doubled, rising from 17 to 30 cases per million inhabitants per quarter. 'The increase is evident and forces us to observe the trend with the utmost attention,' explained Professor Alkomiet Hasan, director of the study and Chair of Psychiatry at the University of Augsburg. Although he does not claim a definitive causal relationship between the law and the rise in illnesses, Hasan warns that these data should serve as an 'early warning.' The phenomenon is not exclusive to Germany. In Canada, which legalized cannabis in 2018, hospital admissions for psychosis related to the drug nearly tripled in a few years. A Danish study reached an equally concerning conclusion: almost one in two cannabis induced psychoses turns into a permanent mental disorder. Psychiatrist Oliver Pogarell, deputy director of the Psychiatry Clinic at the University of Munich, points out that the risk of suffering a psychosis 'doubles with habitual consumption' and may "triple among young people under 25." He also notes that the risk of addiction is around 10%, but rises to 17% if use begins during adolescence. The government at the time claimed that legalization would make it possible to control sales and reduce the black market. However, the first data show that consumption has neither decreased nor stabilized but remains at high and socially normalized levels, especially among young adults. According to the Epidemiologischer Suchtsurvey by the Institute for Therapeutic Research in Munich, 9.8% of respondents reported using cannabis in 2024, compared with 8.8% in 2021. Although the increase is not statistically significant, it confirms a steady upward trend. Experts say that easier access and the belief that cannabis is harmless have made more people try it—including those most at risk. Dr. Hasan insists that 'those with a family history of psychotic disorders or who already show mild symptoms should avoid cannabis consumption entirely.' For now, the most serious effects are concentrated among adults, although psychiatrists fear that in the coming years they will also affect adolescents." (Germany Sees Surge In Psychosis After Cannabis Legalisation by Javier Villamor).

The Sickness. Ten seconds. This is all that is required for a nuclear explosion to reach its maximum size, but the effects of the explosion last for decades and reach across the expanses of time and space. Two hundred and fifty years after Immanuel Kant issued his Critique Of Pure Reason declaration of war against the possibility of knowing anything outside ourselves, few survivors of the blast remain. In the twenty first century, the West has collapsed into drug trips sweeping into fields of nonperception. Touted as an "expansion of consciousness," these trips piloted by Kant have contracted consciousness to zero.

DIVERSITY, EQUITY AND INCLUSION: THE HOUSE THAT HITLER BUILT

Located at 45 Brienner Street in Munich was an impressive stone mansion. From 1931 to 1943, it served as the headquarters of the National Socialist German Workers Party, and became the nucleus of a hate organization whose tentacles reached across Europe. Called the Brown House from the color of the party's Storm Trooper uniforms, it was renovated by Adolf Hitler, and was known as the house that Hitler built: "For the first time in his life, Hitler was able to abandon himself to his passion for building and designing." (The Fuhrer by Konrad Heiden). In 1943, the house was destroyed and reduced to rubble in an Allied bombing raid, and two years later, the rubble of the Third Reich itself would be cleared away. In the twenty first century, in the nation which led the Allied bombing raids against the Brown House, this hub of hate has been reassembled by Hitler's heirs and successors, and become a dark symbol of the zeitgeist which has captured the West. In the twenty first century, the house that Hitler built has become an ideology of discrimination on the basis of race, gender, ethnicity and sexual orientation, and peddles the infamous old time hate now under a forest of rainbow colored flags. In the twenty first century, the Brown House has become a multicolored neoMarxist, neoHitlerite house of evermultiplying tribes, joining forces or competing for power, but united one and all by their opposition to the institutions of the Enlightenment. The house was first constructed in the 1960s with the emergence of gender, race and class politics, and has been consolidated over the decades. In the twenty first century, it has become impregnable because it enjoys massive worldwide support spreading across every sector of society, from the shop floor to the corporate suite, and is a synonym and byword for the Western cultural and political establishment. All attempts to destroy it have been reduced to nought, and have resulted only in a process of rebranding and renaming, while tribalist essence remains untouched. The House That Hitler Built. Look at the house that Hitler built and see it reassembled under the rubrics of black politics, gender politics, class politics and ethnicity politics. See the proclamation that meritocracy is unfair to unqualified blacks by blocking their opportunities. Meritocracy violates the common good which is tribalist and collectivist in character. Meritocracy is a product of liberal ideological fantasies. The notion that people should be rewarded on the basis of their talents and efforts rather than their gender, race or class deprives ignorant, unskilled, shiftless blacks, women and poor people of equal opportunity with intelligent, skilled, hardworking, better off white males. Meritocracy is a pernicious structure of discrimination and inequality oppressing unqualified blacks, women and poor people. The notion that people should achieve success through their own achievements and not their membership in groups discriminates against poor people. A progressive society rejects an aristocracy of talent and ability in favor of a mobocracy of multiplying majorities and human bacteria. A progressive society has exterminated the class of top earners in the name of fairness to the class of destitute good for nothings. A progressive society has exterminated the rich and the highly qualified in the name of justice to the poor and the highly unqualified. Meritocracy is a rich man's system and is antipoor. Meritocracy is based on the modern capitalist prejudice that intelligent, productive, highly skilled workers deserve to earn more than ignorant, indolent, low skilled workers. A progressive society is a racist and sexist society implementing racist and sexist diversity programs, racist and sexist inclusivity programs, and promoting racism and sexism as expressions of true equity. A progressive society rejects the principle of individual achievement in favor of tribal justice and a regression into primitivism: "Meritocracy is a modern myth that perpetuates inequality, blocks opportunity, and harms the common good, a professor argued during an Arizona State University event this month. 'Any idea that merit makes inequality deserved is a circle. Merit isn’t a real virtue. It’s just an ideological conceit constructed to launder otherwise offensive inequalities,' Yale Law Professor Daniel Markovits said during the Myth of Meritocracy event. Markovits defined meritocracy as reward based on talent and effort, rather than race, class, or gender. He said the original promise of the concept was that 'no group has a monopoly on merit' and 'anyone can get ahead.' He acknowledged that meritocracy is the reason there are black elites and women in power today. However, it has become self defeating. Now, he said, it 'starves the middle class' and 'justifies inequality with the myth of merit.' He called meritocracy 'the single greatest obstacle to equality of opportunity.' He said it promises that anyone can rise through their own achievements, but success actually depends on three factors: raw talent, personal effort, and investment in training and education. Wealthy families pour vastly more resources into developing their children’s skills than anyone else does, turning what looks like a fair race into one that’s heavily rigged from the start, he said. Offering an example, he said, 'At elite colleges there are more kids from the top 1 percent than the entire bottom 50 percent.' Further, the same ten universities that dominated in 1920 remain on top today. According to Markovits, this is because the new meritocratic elite developed an 'effectively unlimited appetite for education.' He said rich families now spend $60,000 more per year on schooling than middle class ones, and the rich–poor achievement gap has surpassed the 1954 white–black gap. 'Rich parents use exceptionally intensive investments in education as a technology to pass privilege down,' Markovits said. 'We have recreated an aristocracy, only now it's based on training and school,' he said. He also said that this 'meritocratic elite no longer serves the common good.' Top earners claim their massive paychecks are justified by their productivity, 'but the only reason they're so productive is that the labor market has changed to suit their needs,' he said. The economy has been reshaped to make their specific skills hypervaluable while devaluing everyone else's work. The top one percent of earners work as much as 12 hours more per week than the bottom 60 percent, not because others are lazy, but because the economy no longer offers dignified work to those without elite credentials, he said. Finally, the professor refuted criticisms of 'diversity, equity, and inclusion' initiatives. With all the discussion around DEI, the assumption is that we're not admitting qualified people of color, he said. Markovits argued universities are actually admitting 'hyper qualified people of color.' 'Now, here's something that's also true, though. Our students of color are in general pretty rich. We've had an enormous success in the past five years in by a multiple factor, admitting more and more and more students who come from real economic disadvantage,' he said. According to the description of the event on ASU's website, attendees were invited to discover how meritocracy obscures 'structural inequalities' and 'collaboratively imagine more just and equitable alternatives to earning success.' 'Through critique, dialogue, and collective visioning, the event invites attendees to move beyond individual achievement narratives toward systemic understanding and action,' the description states." (Merit Is A Myth Used To Justify Inequality,' Yale Professor Says by Gabrielle Temaat). The House That Hitler Built. Look at the house that Hitler built and see a late Western cultural trend entrenched and ineradicable. See a monster of racism and sexism called Diversity, Equity and Inclusion stalk the land. See it move secretly, defeat opposition, and continue to carry out its plans. See it kept alive and well by a cultural transformation into degeneracy, an end stage development in which individuals are devalued in favor of gender, race and class tribes. See DEI jackboots continue to swell the ranks of governments, corporations and academia. See a monster wear new names and new faces as continues its mission to defy the law. See a monster continue to promote transgender rights in the face of court rulings affirming biological reality and the existence of sex chromosomes. See a monster supported by every sector of society, from charities to city councils to judges to tribunals to civil servants to the medical establishment to corporate executives to college administrators, promote racist and sexist discrimination in the name of progressivism and the rights of women and blacks. See a monster which cannot be killed because it is esteemed by the masses, heads masses' list of cultural heroes and promotes the masses' orthodoxies of the final age of the West: "It's hard to discern definitively when societal trends end and new ones begin. On a practical level, regulators such as the Financial Conduct Authority and companies such as Amazon, McDonald's, Lloyds Bank and BT say they will ditch diversity and inclusion rules. Yet in the UK, just 11 per cent of British firms surveyed say they plan similar changes, despite the existence of more than twice as many DEI officials deployed per head of population as any other country in the world. Others warn DEI is not being disbanded but rebranded, encouraged by campaigns such as 'DEI by Stealth'. Politically, the future is even more murky. While some saw the success of DEI as the result of an activist march through institutions, others say it reflects a more widespread cultural transformation. Certainly, political commitment to the DEI orthodoxies seems to run deep, with NHS, civil service and judicial bodies regularly recommitting to DEI principles. Some charities and public bodies have expressed defiance of the UK Supreme Court ruling that sex means biological reality. Universities such as Cambridge are expanding rather than contracting affirmative selection schemes. Reform UK, which took control of 10 councils in this year's May local elections, report 'obstructionism' and CEOs 'wilfully defying' actions to dismantle DEI. Will opponents need to revoke regulatory and legislative underpinnings, such as the Public Sector Equality Duty, to finally kill the beast? For others, the key challenge is to make DEI more workable. Luke Tryl of More in Common warns that whatever the excesses, changes driven by progressive activists are ranked high on the list of things the British people say they're proudest of: advances in women's rights and gay rights, reductions in outright racism." (Will DEI Ever DIE?, Battle of Ideas, website). The House That Hitler Built. They all had offices in it: Adolf Hitler, Rudolf Hess, Ernst Rohm, the Reich SS leadership and the Reich press. It contained the Flag Hall and the Standard Hall to promote the emblems of the new national socialist religion. At the entrance to the building were Storm Troopers posted day and night, and above the entrance were the words, Germany, Awake! In the twenty first century, the house that Hitler built contains new occupants and new emblems. These new occupants are the fuhrers of gender, race and class politics, rejecting a gender blind, race blind and class blind society, and these new emblems are the rainbow flags of neoHitlerite, neoMarxist radicalism and revolution. The house is guarded day and night by storm troopers ready to assault the voices of liberalism, individualism, meritocracy and the Enlightenment. Above the entrance are the words, Discrimination In The Name Of Diversity, Equity And Inclusion. In the twenty first century, the house that Hitler spans every nation of the West and has crushed the Enlightement.

MODERN PHYSICS AND MATHEMATICS: POWER WITHOUT PICTURES

The word sanity is one of the most important words in the English language, for it refers to the soundness and health of the human mind. A person is said to be sane when he is rational and compos mentis, which means possessing "mastery, control and power of mind." When a sane peson thinks about the world, he employs his common sense, his knowledge of basic facts which every normal adult possesses, and establishes the axioms by which he can function and flourish. These facts and axioms are as follows. The world consists of separate, distinct physical objects which are as they are and are directly perceived by man. Objects do not move or act by chance but in accordance with their natures, and an object cannot act in a manner which contradicts what it is. Water always boils and never freezes when it is brought into contact with fire, and a speeding train always stops and never accelerates when its brakes are applied. Fields are not primary realities but are properties of objects, being the forces exerted by objects which affect other objects. Fields no more exist apart from the objects which create them than the color blue exists apart from objects which are blue, or the activity of walking exists apart from legs which walk. A product of the Enlightenment and its philosophy of empiricism and the evidence of the senses, the body of physics and mathematics which emerged in the twentieth century has afforded man the most powerful tools in history by which he can master the forces of nature and advance industry and technology. Nothing like them had ever been invented, and no culture except the West has brought industry and technology to dizzying heights which rain down untold wonders and marvels upon the world. But this level of power and control has been purchased at a price, and the price is picturability. The body of physics and mathematics which emerged in the twentieth century, and has been developing at lightning speed ever since, is supremely useful and powerful but is supremely unpicturable, and any attempt to picture it entails a descent into insanity and a violation of the axioms established by common sense. In the realms of physics and mathematics, there exists an inverse relation between power and predictability. The more powerful a physical or mathematical theory is in enabling control over nature and advancing industry and technology, the less picturable it is, and physical and mathematical theories which are perfectly picturable lack the power of modern day theories. The body of physics and mathematics developed in Classical Apollonian culture consisted in qualitative, determinate, particle based physics, and Euclidean geometry and the arithmetic of natural numbers excluding zero. This body is perfectly picturable but is incapable of scaling the heights of industrial and technological progress and mastery which the body of physics and mathematics developed by Western Faustian culture has scaled. Supremely powerful, Western Faustian physics and mathematics consisting of relativity field physics, quantum mechanical randomly moving particle physics, nonEuclidean geometries, and sets of nonnatural zero, negative and infinite numbers, is supremely unpicturable, and exemplifies the inverse relation between power and predictability as nothing else does. Look at modern physics and mathematics and see an extraordinary human achievement, one whose words and numbers can be practically utilized but can never be pictured or perceived. Modern Physics: Field Theory. Look at modern physics and see the proclamation that reality consists of pure space in the absence of objects. There exists no objects which have location or position, which move or change into each other, or interact with or affect other objects. Space is a mystical system and substance, and the objects we perceive are mere appearances and illusions, and man is blind whenever he sees, and is blind because he has eyes. Reality is pure field, force and energy without anything which creates these or possesses these. Reality consists of pure vibrating strings without anything which vibrates. Reality is pure geometry and is the geometry of nothing. Reality is pure continuum and undifferentiation, and is unnatural, nonphysical and absolute nothingness: "Space and time are typically defined using a familiar abstraction that prefigures a dichotomy between bodies/entities and physical space. Bodies/entities are characterized by a position, may move throughout space, interact and transform into each other. In this abstraction, empty space plays no substantial role, apart from providing a natural notion to distinguish between various systems and allow one to calculate their spatial distance. But in fact a reasonable description of reality needs to consider space itself as a system, and all entities we observe (including ourselves) as its components or its properties. For instance, let's consider empty space as nothing. This immediately leads to a wide range of paradoxes: how is it possible that systems (like us and the Earth) move through nothing? What exactly is nothing? Does nothing exist or not? Beyond this intuitive reasoning, there is a much sounder one. In the course of countless trials and errors, scientists have been forced to use this concept in order to be able to adequately explain natural phenomena. In fact, all most precise fundamental theories of physics treat space itself as a system. This naturally leads us to the concept of field. A very intuitive analogy is provided by the famous cartoon The Line by Osvaldo Cavandoli, in which space is simply a continuum (flat line), and every object, including the character, can be distinguished as lines with different height/shape (that is, different energy levels). This means an authentic paradigm shift of the concept of reality as we know it from our daily experience. While it is well known to physicists, it is much less known to the public." (Everything Is Made Of Fields by Igino Corona). Modern Physics: Quantum Theory. Look at modern physics and see the proclamation that objects are not as they are, A is not A, but exist in all states at one and the same time, in states of superposition and contradiction. Objects exist and have shapes, positions and locations only when they are observed. Observers do not observe anything but create and affect reality by their socalled observations. Observers create the universe and there are as many universes as there are observers. Reality is devoid of causality and anything can happen at any moment. Reality is devoid of time order and the past can occur after the future, and the future can occur before the past. Reality is a maelstrom of disorder and is incomprehensible and insane: "When compared to classical science and Newtonian physics, the theories proposed to explain quantum physics seem insane. Niels Bohr's Copenhagen interpretation of quantum physics is perhaps the most comforting theory put forth. By explaining that particles exist in all states at once --in coherent superposition--our understanding of the universe is put slightly askew, but still remains somewhat comprehensible. Bohr's theory is additionally comforting because it makes us humans the cause for an object to take a determined shape. Although scientists find a particle's ability to exist in more than one state frustrating, our observations affect the particle. At least it doesn't continue to exist in all states while we're looking at it. Much less comforting is Everett's Many Worlds interpretation. This theory takes out of our hands any power over the quantum universe. Instead, we are merely passengers of the splits that take place with each possible outcome. In essence, under the Many Worlds theory, our idea of cause and effect goes out the window. This makes the Many Worlds interpretation somewhat disturbing. If it's true, then in some universe parallel to the one we currently inhabit, Adolf Hitler was successful in his campaign to conquer the world. But in the same token, in another universe, the United States never dropped atomic bombs on Hiroshima and Nagasaki. The Many Worlds theory also certainly contradicts the idea of Occam's razor, that the simplest explanation is usually the correct one. Even stranger is the implication by the Many Worlds theory that time doesn't exist in a coherent, linear motion. Instead, it moves in jumps and starts, existing not as a line, but as branches. These branches are as numerous as the number of consequences to all of the actions that have ever been taken." (The Implications Of Quantum Physics by Josh Clark). Modern Mathematics. Look at modern mathematics and see the proclamation that numbers number nothing in reality. Numbers do not represent physical magnitudes or physical presentness but are pure Faustian space, infinity, relations and functions. Numbers are complex, negative, zero and fractional, and are anything and everything except representations of objects. Reality is nonEuclidean and cannot be drawn or numbered in any manner. Geometry is the geometry of space and not objects. Areas are areas of nothing, and volumes are volumes of nothing. Reality cannot be added, multiplied, divided or subtracted. Reality is not three dimensional, human sanity and common sense notwithstanding, but is infinite dimensional, and is a curvature of and curvature into nothingness: "At the moment exactly corresponding to that at which (c. 540 BC) the Classical Soul in the person of Pythagoras discovered its own proper Apollonian number, the measurable magnitude, the Western soul in the persons of Descartes and his generation (Pascal, Fermat, Desargues) discovered a notion of number that was the child of a passionate Faustian tendency towards the infinite. Number as pure magnitude inherent in the material presentness of things is paralleled by numbers as pure relation, and if we may characterize the Classical world, the cosmos, as being based on a deep need of visible limits and composed accordingly as a sum of material things, so we may say that our world picture is an actualizing of an infinite space in which things visible appear very nearly as realities of a lower order, as the limited in the presence of the illimitable. The symbol of the West is an idea of which no other Culture gives even a hint, the idea of Function. The function is anything, and rather than an expansion of, it is a complete emancipation from, any preexistent idea of number. With the function, not only the Euclidean geometry (and with it the common human geometry based on everyday experience) but also the Archimedean arithmetic, ceased to have any value for the really significant mathematic of Western Europe. Henceforward, this consisted solely in abstract analysis. For Classical man geometry and arithmetic were self contained and complete sciences of the highest rank, both phenomenal and both concerned with magnitudes that could be drawn or numbered. For us, on the contrary, those things are only practical auxiliaries of daily life. Addition and multiplication, the two Classical methods of reckoning magnitudes, have, like their sister geometrical drawing, utterly vanished in the infinity of functional processes. Even the power, which in the beginning denotes numerically a set of multiplications (products of equal magnitudes), is, through the exponential idea (logarithm) and its employment in complex, negative and fractional forms, dissociated from all connection with magnitude and transferred to a transcendent relational world which the Greeks, knowing only the two positive whole number powers that represent areas and volumes, were unable to approach." (The Decline And Fall Of The West by Oswald Spengler, Chapter II: The Meaning Of Numbers). Modern Physics and Mathematics. Modern physicists are applied mathematicians, rejecting the qualitative properties of objects, and modern mathematicians have renounced the mathematics of bodies and embraced the mathematics of space. They both have made a Faustian bargain to exchange pictures of reality for power over reality. They wield weapons of industrial and technological war and are unconcerned with the discovering real natures or with studying the means of counting and drawing real objects. They are not witch doctors because their theories work, and modern mathematical physics is derived from observations. But neither are they full and complete students of reality. They are Faustian pragmatists and their efforts have ignited the engines of an industrial and technological superpower called the West.

REDS PUT ON NATIVE WAR PAINT

It lasted for 3.5 million years and encompassed ninety nine percent of human history. Without the wheel and without metallurgy, it was an epoch of unremitting darkness and primitivism called the Stone Age, and during its reign of tyranny, people lived and died without meaning. It ended in 4000 BC but in the twenty first century, it has made a comeback amidst the general revolt against reason marking the final stage of Western civilization. This stage of religious revivalism has brought a plethora of players onto the stage of history, some old, some new, and all united in their hatred of the Enlightenment. It has brought forth a Christian Right movement into power which seeks to take the West full circle back to the original Dark Ages, the first age of the West, when the Catholic Church waged war against reason. It has brought forth a latter day version of Christianity called Marxism into power, which substitutes a god called the Collective for the Christian God in Heaven as the collector of human sacrifices. This latter day Christian god mutated in the twentieth century into a multiheaded monster, obeying the Marxist logic of tribalism, and promoted gender, race, class, culture and sexual orientation politics. This monster breathed fire on the Enlightenment idea that individuals and not tribes are the primary existents, and that individuals possess the power of reason to dispel the veils of religion and discover truth from the evidence of the senses. A movement to bring back the Stone Age shares the stage of current events with the Marxist Left and the Christian Right, and supported by the former which has joined hands with its tribalism, it is one more Horseman and Grim Reaper bringing down an apocalypse. Amidst the general revolt against reason commencing at the dawn of the twentieth century, the movement to bring back the Stone Age has sent the chill of fear coursing through the hearts of civilized people, who have seen one more Satan rampaging across the world. The movement to bring back the Stone Age is spearheaded by Native American activists, and their philosophy of antiEnlightenment joins the bibles of the Marxist Left and the Christian Right on the shelves of civilizational suicide and collapse. Stone Age. Native American activists proclaim that society can only be saved and justice can only be served when liberal democracy is overthrown and American Indian tribes seize control. They proclaim that the method of empiricism used by science must be rejected in favor of special tribal knowledge based on mystical feeling and intuition. They proclaim that Native American tribes have the right to plunder museums and research laboratories for artefacts and remains which do not belong to them in the name of the mystical, ancestral rights of the tribe. They proclaim that Native American tribes have a right to invoke the notion of property rights, which is a Western notion and was absent in tribal cultures, and seize native artefacts and remains. They proclaim that Native American wishes and beliefs take precedence over the pursuit of truth and science. They proclaim that Native American tribes are entitled to possess all prehistoric artefacts and remains found in America regardless of whether they in fact belong to them as determined with certainty by scientific data, on the grounds of general geographic affiliation. They proclaim that the notions of objectivity and accuracy are products of Western capitalist imperialism. They proclaim that scientific terms and methods are offensive and insensitive to Native American cultures and must be eliminated. They proclaim that the scientific discovery of the past made by anthropologists and archeologists must be rejected in favor of ideological narratives and constructions composed by Native American repatriation activists. They proclaim that the scientific grasp of reality must be rejected in favor of mystical indigenous knowledge systems in the name of decolonization. They proclaim that anthropological and archeological language must be cleansed of nonreligious terms such as cranium, burial, specimen and human remains, and the latter term must be replaced by the term ancestors. They proclaim that scientists must defer to tribal elders when determining whether a given artefact or human remains belongs to a given tribe. They proclaim that museums and research institutions must not be allowed to study or exhibit Native American cultural materials without tribal consent. They proclaim that universities must partner with Native American tribes in a project to rewrite the past and portray savage cultures as morally superior to the West. They proclaim that the methods of science must be rejected in favor of Native American folklore, superstitions, historical legends and oral traditions: "A training program hosted by Indiana University advised public employees that 'tribes are in control' and 'tribal knowledge is sufficient' when they are working to return Native American artifacts in their research labs and museum collections, according to records obtained by The College Fix. The INSTEP program, which took place July 7 to 11, offers training for university and other public institutions' employees and students on compliance with the Native American Graves Protection and Repatriation Act, or NAGPRA. The federal law requires public institutions to make an effort to return human remains and certain cultural artifacts to Native American tribes. However, two scholars who spoke with The College Fix expressed concerns about sections of the presentations that appear to prioritize Native American tribes' wishes and beliefs over academic research and knowledge. One slide in a 'NAGPRA 101– Legal Processes' presentation addresses how to identify the tribe to which an artifact belongs. It should be 'fairly easy to determine' the cultural identity of an artifact, according to the slide, obtained through an open records request. 'Very little should be unaffiliated' and an examiner '[does] not need all lines of evidence; one is enough,' the presentation states. 'Affiliation [is] not based on scientific certainty,' one slide says. Elizabeth Weiss, emeritus professor of anthropology at San Jose State University, told The Fix in a recent email that most artifacts in the hands of universities today were 'never meant to be repatriated' because they are 'the truly unaffiliated materials.' 'NAGPRA was intended to repatriate human remains and some specific types of artifact to culturally affiliated modern tribes. This affiliation was meant to be determined by a preponderance of evidence—including, but not limited to, biological, historical, geographical, and archaeological data,' she said. Human remains and other items that belonged to tribes were returned years ago, and 'what's left now, in museums and universities, are the truly unaffiliated materials,' she said. Weiss said that 'it's exceedingly difficult—and often impossible—to affiliate prehistoric materials with modern tribes.' She said some tribes no longer exist, and others have merged–'and, there are even some modern tribes that are not Native American at all.' Spencer Pelton, Wyoming state archaeologist and adjunct professor at University of Wyoming, echoed how difficult determining cultural affiliation can be for objects that are more than a few hundred years old. He told The Fix in a recent email: 'The move to do away with unaffiliated objects and human remains was a response to the Kennewick Man case, where archaeologists successfully argued that ancient human remains (in that case ca 8,500 years old) could NOT be affiliated with modern people in any cultural sense.' 'Kennewick Man might be distantly related to modern people biologically, but biological and cultural relatedness are very different things.' Pelton added, 'As a response to that case, the Department of the Interior devised the concept of geographic affiliation in their 2010 regulation changes, which states that any set of human remains can be affiliated based solely on where they were found, regardless of age.' However, these 'regulatory changes seemingly contradict congressional intent and legal precedent,' he said. 'Many modern Tribes contend that they were created in the places where they live today, so there is no need to use the tools of science to establish cultural affiliation,'—and these beliefs were 'enshrined in the most recent NAGPRA regulation changes as Native American Traditional Knowledge,' he said. Pelton added that, until the 2023 update to the federal law, 'only human remains and other specific types of objects were subject to repatriation, but that has now changed to potentially include ALL archaeological objects regardless of their association with human remains.' Other slides from the Indiana University NAGPRA training back up Pelton and Weiss' comments. For example, a 'Consultation 101' slideshow about working with tribal leaders states that 'Tribes are in control of this process!' It additionally advises public university employees that 'We owe it to science' is an unacceptable statement,' and that 'Specimens is an offensive term.' Weiss said she had 'encountered such rhetoric before' and provided examples of other words that were considered insensitive, such as cranium and burial. 'The reason to censor such language, and to argue against science, is to remove objectivity from the field and to fill it with feelings of guilt and oversensitivity,' she said. Weiss continued, 'Anthropologists and archaeologists will then sympathize with the repatriation activists, instead of allowing their curiosity to discover the real prehistory of the Americas.' 'Telling the most accurate story of the past through science is our job as anthropologists and archaeologists; we do owe it to science; and, it's the best way to honor the lives of those who came before us,' she said." ('We Owe It To Science' Is 'Unacceptable': Indiana U Training Prioritizes 'Tribal Knowledge' by James Samuel). Stone Age. In the twenty first century, the epoch of prehistory is returning in a cascade of Native American artefacts and human remains, proclaimed to be sacred, untouchable and mystically endowed, covered in dirt marked decolonization. The voices of scientific anthropology and archeology, advocating the study of Native American culture in an empirical, nonpartisan manner, have been censored as harmful, offensive and politically incorrect. Promoted by Marxists joining forces with Native American activists, the Stone Age is exalted as an age of happiness and nobility. It is exalted as the West descends into stagnation, tyranny and disorder.

NIGHTMARE ALLEY

Horror is a film genre seeking to elicit terror in the audience. It explores dark themes and subject matter, and includes such elements as monsters, religions, superstitions, folk beliefs and apocalyptic events. Horror films have been inspired by horror literature, whose main authors are Bram Stoker, Mary Shelley and Edgar Allan Poe. The films and literature of horror have counterparts in real life, figures who strike the chill of fear in the hearts of civilized people. Their aim is to scare the civilized, subvert free institutions and bring forth the currents of civilizational collapse. Since the dawn of the twentieth century, the story of the West has seen the screening and composition of horror involving the monsters, superstitions and apocalyptic events of the number one religion of our time. Multiplying by the minute in the sewers of human bacteria, this mass religion is called Marxism, and its nineteenth century founder has taken his place as the leader of horror in the late stage of civilization. Marxism is horror, moral, spiritual, psychological and political horror, and its institutionalization in the West over the past 125 years has spelled the permanent cessation of the institutions of the Enlightenment. Marxism has captured and laid low every aspect of society and made it unrecognizable, striking the rich and the poor, billionnaires and bus drivers, princes and paupers, corporate executives and product assemblers on the shop floor, its monsters mauling apart young minds and reducing their victims to street hoodlums and Manchurian candidates ready to spring into action. Marxism controls the man on the street, the neighbors next door, the offices and factories in commercial parks, the presidents, prime ministers, parliamentarians, committees, commissions and courts of law in governments, and controls what is taught in classrooms. Its professors look and act the roles of horror, and are living and breathing embodiments of the Marxist monster of gender, race, class, culture and sexual orientation politics which is rampaging across the late modern age. Look at their faces and forms, listen to their agitation and propaganda, witness their acts of violence and destruction, and see a screening of horror the likes of which has never been seen before. Horror. Look at Eman Abdelhadi commit battery, violence and disturbances of the peace in the name of Marxism and Islam. Look at her spew out antiAmerican vitriol in the name of Marxism and Islam. Look at her terrorize campuses, intimidate the voices of dissent, and deprive students of safety and security in the name of Marxism and Islam. Look at her mobilize campus mobs promoting Palestinian terror. Look at her build a power base comprised of Marxists and Muslims seeking to overthrow liberal democracy. Look at her promote gender, race, class and Muslim socialism. Look at her reject liberal democracy and advocate the boycott and extermination of Israel and Jews in the name of justice for Palestine. Look at her condemn Israel as a Western colonialist, apartheid regime because it seeks to expel the armies of Palestinian terror from the nation and to settle Palestinian terror lands with the flags of freedom and law. Look at her reject capitalism as a regime of white supremacy and oppression of women, Arabs, Palestinians, gays, lesbians, transgenders, nonbinaries and the disabled. Look at her reject capitalism as a regime of evil, colonial landlords. Look at her proclaim that a progressive university is a radical, partisan university dedicated to the destruction of free institutions throughout the world, from America to Europe to Israel: "On October 3rd, 2025, University of Chicago (UChicago) assistant professor Eman Abdelhadi was arrested on two counts of aggravated battery and two counts of resisting and obstructing peace while protesting outside an Immigration and Customs Enforcement facility in Broadview, Illinois. 'Professor Eman Abdelhadi's history of inflammatory and antiAmerican rhetoric is deeply concerning. Students deserve a safe and open campus environment where they can express their views without fear of intimidation or retaliation from faculty,' said UChicago Turning Point USA Chapter President Tyler Shasteen. 'I call on the University of Chicago to review her position and ensure accountability for any actions that violate university policy or the law.' Abdelhadi's radical repertoire does not end there. The assistant professor has openly criticized her employer, UChicago, as an 'evil colonial landlord.' At the Socialism 2025 conference, she even admitted to exploiting her position and place of employment, using it as a platform to mobilize on behalf of the proPalestine cause. 'What we don't have is power,' she explained. 'I work at a place where I have access to thousands of people that I could potentially organize,' she revealed, adding, 'This is where I need to build power. This is my best possible structural leverage.' According to her biography, Abdelhadi is also a member of the radical Faculty and Staff for Justice in Palestine (FSJP) organization at Uchicago. FSJP's mission is to encourage 'academic and cultural boycotts of Israel and Israeli academic institutions, both of which have been responsible for maintaining apartheid and colonial occupation.' It also 'promotes efforts to draw attention to the history of Palestine and Palestinian resistance, both on campuses and in the public sphere,' and 'defends and supports the right to teach and talk about these topics as they relate to interlocking systems of oppression underpinned by global white supremacy and racial capitalism.' 'FSJP is firmly committed to combating any form of racism, including antiArab and antiPalestinian racism, Islamophobia, antisemitism, antiblackness, and white supremacy. It is also firmly committed to combating all forms of oppression, including caste hierarchies and those targeting sexuality, trans and nonbinary gender identification, and disabilities of any kind.' When the UChicago administration dared to meet with a Jewish community leader, Abdelhadi posted the following response on X: 'I am, to my knowledge, the only Palestinian professor on UChicago's main campus. I woke up to this photo; after three months of being told this university is politically neutral. Never once has this admin asked after my safety or the safety of my students.' " (Guess Who's Teaching America's College Students? by Claire Harrington). Horror. Look at Jules Purnell reject capitalism as a regime of sexual violence, antipleasure, antiwellness, and discrimination against queers, transgenders, nonbinaries, the nonmonogamous, the transmasculine, and the mentally and physically disabled. Look at her reject capitalism as a regime of theft of Native American lands. Look at her reject reason, science and the Enlightenment in the name of Martin Heidegger, Jacques Derrida, antiracism, feminism, the kink community and gay politics: "Jules Purnell, MEd, is a Title IX Training Specialist in the Equal Opportunity & Access Office at the University of Massachusetts-Amherst (UMass-Amherst). Purnell's university bio lists pronouns as 'they/them,' and claims expertise in the areas of 'consent, sexual violence, healthy relationships, human sexuality, LGBTQIA+ inclusion and intersectionality.' (Jules was born female). On September 26, 2025, UMass-Amherst hosted a Sex on the Lawn event focused on 'sexual health, reproductive justice, consent, wellness, and pleasure,' during which Purnell hosted a seminar titled Loving Across Differences: Disability, Dating, and Sex. On Purnell's personal website, she presents herself as adopting a range of identities and includes a land acknowledgment. The bio reads: 'JULES PURNELL (they/them) is queer, nonbinary, transmasculine, chronically ill/disabled, and currently resides in Western Massachusetts, land originally inhabited by Wabanaki and Pocumtuc people. They identify as multiracial, the descendant of immigrants from Southeast Asia and Western Europe, whose family eventually settled in the Midwestern United States. Jules is a member of the kink community, ethically nonmonogamous, and coparent to two neurospicy, gender creative children.' The biography continues with a description of Purnell's personal philosophy, saying: 'Jules' approach is informed by an expressly intersectional, postmodern, existentialist, antiracist, feminist, and queer theory informed perspective.' " (Guess Who's Teaching America's College Students? by Claire Harrington). Horror. Look at Kareem Khubchandani reject capitalism in the name of gender rights and drag queens. Look at him reject capitalism in the name of queer customs, habits, backgrounds and ethnicities. Look at him reject capitalism in the name of black queer politics. Look at him reject capitalism in the name of whores, vaginas, uteruses, labias and fallopian tubes: "On October 3rd, 2025, a LibsofTikTok post went viral. Its headline? Harvard University hired a drag queen as a visiting associate professor to teach Gender and Sexuality Studies. One X account, the Conservative Alternative (@OldeWorldOrder) commented, 'Noah, get the boat,' presumably referencing the Biblical account of the Great Flood. Kareem Khubchandani, who goes by the drag name LaWhore Vagistan, currently leads a Queer Ethnography course, and will reportedly lead a spring 2026 course called RuPaulitics: Drag, Race, and Desire. Back in 2015, Johns Hopkins University Press and Project Muse published an article titled Lessons In Drag: An Interview With LaWhore Vagistan between Khubchandani and his drag persona. In one section of the article, Khubchandani's alter ego introduced 'herself,' saying: 'My name is LaWhore Vagistan, my preferred pronouns are she or aunty. I chose LaWhore because my family traces its origins to Pakistan: Lahore is an important city in Pakistan, and, well, I'm a bit of a whore. And Vagistan because I see the subcontinent as one, big, beautiful Vagistan. Close your eyes and visualize it: India is the uterus-vagina, Pakistan and Bangladesh are the ovaries, Afghanistan, Nepal, Burma, and Bhutan are the fallopian tubes, and Sri Lanka is a little floating labia.' " (Guess Who's Teaching America's College Students? by Claire Harrington). Horror. His name is Count Orlock. Based on Bram Stoker's Count Dracula, he is the eponymous character in F. W. Murnau's classic 1922 horror film. A vampire descended from Hell, dwelling in caves, tombs and coffins filled with the soil in which the victims of the Black Death were buried, a repulsive figure having a bald head, a beak nose, hollow eyes, pointed ears, sharp fingernails and rat like fangs, on a mission to spread the Black Death across Germany, Count Orlock has come alive in the late modern age and is ubiquitous in the twenty first century. Promoting intersectional gender, race class, culture and sexual orientation politics, campus drag queens, transgenderist insanity and violent attacks against dissenters, Count Orlock is consuming the life blood of civilization and spreading the plague of a new religious tyranny.

AMERICA'S MARXISTS MARCH ON CITY HALL

It is called a red tide. It is a massive bloom or growth of the algae species known as karenia brevis, and its effects are devastating. It produces poisons which kill mammals, birds and reptiles, felled as they eat contaminated prey. It poisons the brain and disrupts the firing of nerve cells. Coloring the water red, it shuts down beaches, tourism, and causes hundreds of millions of dollars in losses for restaurants and hotels. Its victims stagger for help, stricken by tingling sensations, a palpitating heart, a loss of coordination, and the specter of death to which they succumb in the absence of medical treatment. Since the dawn of the twentieth century, a movement of statism has been advancing across the West, fueled by the number one religion of our time. A religion of the masses, the sewers and the human bacteria flowing through them, it is called Marxism, and in its various forms and manifestations, from classic Marxism to Hitler's national and racial Marxism, it has been growing in power and influence for over one hundred years. In the twenty first century, this movement has produced surges across nations, bringing Marxism into every sector of society and establishing in their wake permanent, settled establishment forces. In the twenty first century, in the land which led the free world in its struggle against the Communist Bloc, surges of Marxism are sweeping away every last vestige of freedom and making the nation unrecognizable. In the twenty first century, the United States of America is being submerged by these surges, establishing beachheads in cities from coast to coast. Look at them and see the waters of subversion rise and bury the nation founded in the Enlightenment. Red Tide. Member of the Democrat Party and the Democratic Socialists of America, an organization devoted, like the Communist Bloc's brand of class socialism and Hitler's brand called national socialism, to the collectivization of human existence, Zohran Mamdani was elected New York City's first Marxist and Muslim mayor on November 5, 2025. Embodying the alliance between Marxists and Muslims forged in the 1960s to fight their common enemy, Western liberal civilization, Mayor elect Mamdani stands as a focal point of two negative global trends, Marxism and Islam, and stands as the essence of evil in the revolt against reason destroying the West. Member of the Democrat Party and founder and director of the Marxist organization, the Transit Riders Union, agitating for "immigrants' and workers' rights", Katie Wilson was elected mayor of Seattle on November 4, 2025. Two mayors in America, two products of majorities gone mad, and, in a historic first, two mayors of Marxism, writing the final chapter of the nation, entitled National Suicide. Listen to them and hear the truth of the adage known for thousands of years that mass democracy, as opposed to qualified democracy, sooner or later elects tyranny dictator for life. They proclaim that a progressive society establishes government run homes, schools, offices and grocery stores. A progressive society enforces a Marxist worldview exalting the Collective as god and waging war against the rights of man. A progressive society hates America and the West on the grounds that they represent liberal democratic values and culture. A progressive society elects Marxist brothers and sisters in every office in the land. A progressive society is run by evermultiplying tribes and factions of Bolshevism. A progressive society rejects the Enlightenment view of individuals as individuals and sees them as members of tribes, and seeks to smash liberal democracy with the hammers of black politics, feminist politics, Asian politics, latinx politics, hispanic politics, Pacific Islander politics, people of color politics, people with disabilities politics, transgender politics, nonbinary people's politics, gay and lesbian politics, Muslim politics, Palestinian politics, and the politics of the poor, the unwashed and the proletariat: "Democratic Seattle Mayor elect and self described socialist Katie Wilson's recent mayoral victory may encourage other radical leftist candidates to seek office, according to political analysts. Wilson, 43, unseated incumbent Democratic Seattle Mayor Bruce Harrell on Wednesday. Some analysts explained to the Daily Caller News Foundation that Wilson's success in Seattle's mayoral election may inspire more socialist Democratic candidates to run in future elections across the nation. The Seattle mayor elect has drawn comparisons to Democratic New York City mayor elect Zohran Mamdani, who is also a self avowed socialist. Wilson has promoted several socialist policies during her mayoral campaign, including expressing support in September for establishing government run grocery stores in Seattle. Mamdani has similarly pledged to implement city run grocery stores in New York City, a proposal which has faced pushback from some other Democrats. 'Mamdani and Wilson will definitely inspire more socialists to run,' Sam Kay, director of external affairs and public opinion at the Manhattan Institute, told the DCNF. The Washington Post editorial board wrote in an op-ed published on Sunday that Wilson—who has notably never held elected office— 'has little experience but plenty of bad ideas.' The outlet's editorial board also critiqued Wilson as being an 'activist with even less experience' than Mamdani. 'Wilson may be less constrained than Mamdani,' the Washington Post's editorial board wrote. 'Fellow progressives also toppled the incumbent president of the Seattle City Council and the city attorney while picking up two other seats. Only two of the seven council members have served more than one term.' Political strategist and founder of advocacy organization League of American Workers Steve Cortes told the DCNF he thinks Wilson and Mamdani both have 'an openly Marxist worldview.' 'Katie Wilson and Zohran Mamdani are ideological brother and sister,' Cortes told the DCNF. 'They are coastal leftist elites who openly despise America, lie about our values and culture, and share an openly Marxist worldview.' 'The Washington Post may try to split hairs among these radical leftists, but to normal American citizens, the specific minor differences among the factions of Bolshevism don't matter that much, really,' Cortes added. Mamdani publicly congratulated Wilson on her mayoral victory in a November 14 X post, writing that 'Seattle is in great hands.' Wilson replied on X that she feels 'proud' to 'be in the fight' alongside Mamdani 'for a democracy on the terms of working people: affordability, housing, safety, and more.' Wilson pledged to appoint a mayoral cabinet comprised of 'exceptional leaders whose lived experiences reflect the diversity of Seattle's black, indigenous, Asian and Pacific Islander, latinx/hispanic, and people of color communities as well as that of women, immigrants and refugees, 2SLGBTQIA+ communities, people with disabilities, people of all faith traditions, and residents from every socioeconomic backgrounds', according to her campaign website. She has also vowed to 'Trump proof' Seattle, her website states." (Mamdani's West Coast 'Sister' May Spark Cascade Of Socialist Politicians, Analysts Warn by Ireland Owens). Red Tide. Listen to Zohran Mamdani proclaim that a progressive society is run by proPalestinian, proterror activists. A progressive society seeks to globalize the people's intifada against the symbol of Western freedom in the Middle East, Israel, and lead a global campaign to exterminate Israel and Jews. A progressive society smashes Jewish homes, businesses, synagogues and day schools in torchlight demonstrations seeking to bring down a new Night of Broken Glass and a new Holocaust. A progressive society is run by Marxist and Islamist front organizations, such as Pal-Awda New York and New Jersey, Within Our Lifetime and Jewish Voice for Peace New York, and leads a global campaign to overthrow free nations and institutions. A progressive society has declared war on the Israeli Defense Forces and the cognate defense forces protecting the free world. A progressive society is an anticapitalist, antiliberal, antizionist organization pounding drums of war against Israeli West Bank settlements establishing oases of freedom amidst Muslim deserts. A progressive society condemns Israeli West Bank settlements as thefts of land rightfully belonging to Arab, Muslim and Palestinian terrorists. A progressive society is an organization of resistance and revolution launching firebombs of hatred and violence against the houses of freedom, from New York to Barcelona to West Bank settlements, and enforcing sentences of extermination handed down by Satan's death religions of Marxism and Islam: "Hundreds of proPalestinian activists besieged Manhattan's prestigious Park East Synagogue on Wednesday night, chanting, Globalize the intifada, Death to the IDF, and take another settler out, in what critics warned is 'just the beginning' of a radicalized climate under socialist Mayor elect Zohran Mamdani. The nighttime demonstration targeted an event about Jewish immigration to Israel hosted inside the synagogue, which has stood on East 67th Street since 1890 and also houses a prominent Jewish day school. Organizers from Pal-Awda New York and New Jersey, Within Our Lifetime, Jewish Voice for Peace New York, and allied antiIsrael groups promoted the rally as 'No settlers on stolen land' and a 'protest to stop the settler recruiting fair.' Radical proPalestinian activists pounded drums and unleashed a barrage of incendiary chants, including Resistance is glorious, Intifada revolution, No peace on stolen land, We don't want no two states, we want forty eight, and From New York to Gaza, globalize the intifada, while signs declared, Zionism is a death cult and No settlers on stolen land." (Pro Palestinian Activists Besiege NYC Synagogue: 'Mamdani Era Has Already Begun' by Joshua Klein). Red Tide. Listen to Katie Wilson proclaim that a progressive society establishes communism in the name of mass participation at the people's table. A progressive society takes over the economy as it taxes the rich out of existence. A progressive society is a totalitarian telescreen manned by the people's commissars, a panoptican and jail house which is freedom proof, law proof, civilization proof and Trump proof: "Self proclaimed socialist Katie Wilson will be the next mayor of Seattle, overseeing a budget close to $9 billion. Wilson, whose campaign was likened to that of fellow Democratic Socialist Zohran Mamdani in New York City, secured the lead over incumbent Mayor Bruce Harrell on Wednesday. 'This campaign was driven by a deep belief that we need to expand the table to include everyone in the decisions that impact their lives,' Wilson said in a victory statement. 'That is what we will be working to do every day as we set up this new administration.' Wilson secured her win by advocating for progressive proposals, including introducing city run grocery stores and taxing the rich. She also vowed to 'Trump proof' the city. 'Yes, I am a socialist,' Wilson said earlier this year." (Katie Wilson—A 43 year Old Socialist Who Still Lives Off Parents' Money—Wins Seattle Mayoral Race by Ronny Reyes). Red Tide. The coast of Florida is notorious for its red tides, lasting up to eighteen months.

They have been occurring for centuries; Spanish explorers recorded them in the 1500s; but due to increasing nutrient influxes from human activities, they have been steadily increasing in frequency. Since the dawn of the twentieth century, an increasing influx of mass envy and hatred into the sewers of human bacteria has produced a global bloom of Marxism which is burying civilization. The bloom has swept into America's city halls and elected Zohran Mamdani and Katie Wilson.

REDS BOMB NEW YORK HARBOR

She stands fifty meters tall on Liberty Island in New York Harbor. Clad in copper, she was a gift to America from France and was dedicated on October 28, 1886. Inspired by Libertas, the Roman goddess of liberty, holding a torch above her with her right hand, carrying a tablet in her left hand inscribed July 4, 1776, the date of America's Declaration of Independence, and stepping with her left foot on a broken chain and shackle, symbolizing America's abolition of slavery after the Civil War, she is called Liberty Enlightening the World. Fifteen years after this icon of freedom and beacon of hope for the oppressed was dedicated, it was disgraced by a new movement arising. Fifteen years after the Statue of Liberty was first applauded by citizens, immigrants and tourists when she was introduced, she had red paint thrown on her by gathering mobs who demanded the repeal of liberty and the enactment of statism. For the past one hundred and twenty five years, America's majestic symbol of the Enlightenment has been a meaningless presence in New York City, its five million visitors per year, coming from every corner of the globe, looking at a colossal classical statue and thinking they are seeing something symbolizing a nation which in fact they are seeing a relic from a bygone age, as relevant to the reality of America today as the nation's hallowed Constitution codifying liberty, which the mob repealed at the same time it vandalized the nation's towering Roman goddess. Liberty. The state of being free from oppressive laws passed by the government. The state of being free to act without unjust interference from the government and to do as one pleases so long as the equal rights of others are respected. "No person shall be deprived of life, liberty or property, without due process of law." Thus speaks the Fifth Amendment of the Constitution. "Nor shall any State deprive any person of life, liberty or property, without due process of law." Thus speaks the Fourteenth Amendment of the Constitution. This commitment to liberty which exalted America among nations and led to the abolition of slavery was rejected by the American people at the dawn of the twentieth century when the zeitgeist of the West changed. The new spirit of the times saw a popular rejection of the Enlightenment and an embrace of the currents of irrationalism, which in turn led to the rise of statism in various forms and manifestations. Like all other nations in the West, America caught the fever, and since the dawn of the twentieth century, the nation has been on a downward trajectory by popular demand, descending into the malarial swamps of statist tyranny. Since the dawn of the twentieth century, the founding American principle of liberty has been negated every which way, in legislatures, courts of law and in the court of public opinion, and been rendered null and void. Civilized people know what liberty means. Since the dawn of the twentieth century, America has been voting in landslides for statism, and given civilized people terrifying demonstrations of what liberty is not. What Liberty Is Not. Liberty is not the New Nationalism or New Freedom, both taking an expansive view of government power. Liberty is not the New Deal. Liberty is not the Social Security Act. Liberty is not the New Frontier. Liberty is not the Great Society. Liberty is not the War on Poverty. Liberty is not antidiscrimination laws governing private establishments. Liberty is not affirmative action laws mandating race and gender discrimination by private establishments. Liberty is not antipornography laws. Liberty is not hate speech codes. Liberty is not the enforcement of political correctness. Liberty is not Centrism. Liberty is not Compassionate Conservatism. Liberty is not a Kinder, Gentler Nation. Liberty is not the Moral Majority. Liberty is not the Christian Right. Liberty is not the Marxist Left. Liberty is not gender, race, class, culture or sexual orientation politics. Liberty is not the Third Way. Liberty is not the Affordable Care Act. Liberty is not Build Back Better. Liberty is not Democratic Socialism.

Liberty is not Medicare for All. Liberty is not a Green New Deal. Liberty is not import tariffs to protect domestic businesses. Liberty is not "progressivism" peddling an unconstitutional American welfare regulatory regime. What Liberty Is Not. Look at America over the past one hundred and twenty five years and see the United States Supreme Court rule that liberty of contract does not exist and state minimum wage laws do not violate the Constitution. See it proclaim that the word liberty mentioned in the Due Process Clause of the Fourteenth Amendment does not mean liberty, and that America is not a free society: "In support of minimum wage legislation it has been urged, on the one hand, that great benefits will result in favor of underpaid labor, and, on the other hand, that the danger of such legislation is that the minimum will tend to become the maximum, and thus bring down the earnings of the more efficient toward the level of the less efficient employees. But with these speculations we have nothing to do. We are concerned only with the question of constitutionality. That the clause of the Fourteenth Amendment which forbids a state to deprive any person of life, liberty or property without due process of law includes freedom of contract is so well settled as to be no longer open to question. Nor reasonably can it be disputed that contracts of employment of labor are included in the rule. Mr. Justice Harlan, speaking for the court, [in Adair vs the United States] said, 'The right of a person to sell his labor upon such terms as he deems proper is, in its essence, the same as the right of the purchaser of labor to prescribe the conditions upon which he will accept such labor from the person offering to sell. In all such particulars, the employer and employee have equality of right, and any legislation that disturbs that equality is an arbitrary interference with the liberty of contract which no government can legally justify in a free land." (West Coast Hotel Co. v. Parrish, 1937, dissenting opinion by George Sutherland). What Liberty Is Not. Look at America over the past one hundred and twenty five years and see the United States Supreme Court rule, in Heart of Atlanta Hotel vs the United States, 1964, that Congress has the power under the Commerce Clause to force private businesses to abide by Title II of the Civil Rights Act of 1964, which prohibits discrimination on the basis of race, religion or national origin on their private premises. See the court ruled that the Commerce Clause in Article One of the Constitution, which says that "the United States Congress shall have power to regulate Commerce with foreign Nations, and among the several States, and with the Indian Tribes", does not say what it says. The power to regulate interstate commerce means the power to regulate interstate commerce, and not the power to regulate commerce which is not itself interstate commerce, because it does not cross state lines, and only affects interstate commerce. The Heart of Atlanta Motel was located in the state of Georgia. It did not transport goods or services across state lines, and thus did not engage in interstate commerce. It could not be regulated by Congress. What Liberty Is Not. Look at America over the past one hundred and twenty five years and see the United States Supreme Court rule that the government has the power to ban obscenity. See the Court proclaim that the First Amendment does not say what it says, that its guarantee of free speech contains exceptions which it in fact does not, and that free speech does not mean free speech: "Today the Court retreats from the earlier formulations of the constitutional test [for obscenity] and undertakes to make new definitions. This effort, like the earlier ones, is earnest and well intentioned. The difficulty is that we do not deal with constitutional terms, since obscenity is not mentioned in the Constitution or Bill of Rights. And the First Amendment makes no such exception from the press which it undertakes to protect nor, as I have said on other occasions, is an exception necessarily implied, for there was no recognized exception to the free press at the time the Bill of Rights was adopted which treated obscene publications differently from other types of papers, magazines, and books. So there are no constitutional guidelines for deciding what is and what is not obscene. The Court is at large because we deal with tastes and standards of literature." (Miller vs California, 1973, dissenting opinion by William Douglas). What Liberty Is Not. Look at America over the past one hundred and twenty five years and see the United States Supreme Court rule that Congress has the power to force people to obtain health insurance under the Taxing and Spending Clause of Article I of the Constitution. See it proclaim that the penalty imposed for not obtaining health insurance under the Affordable Care Act is not in fact a penalty, A is not A, but is a tax, and is thus a constitutional exercise of congressional power. See it proclaim that the Affordable Care Act's command to individuals to purchase health insurance, a command enforced by a penalty, must be ignored and rewritten as the imposition of a tax, language and logic notwithstanding: "In answering that question [in the affirmative, whether the individual mandate is authorized by Congress's taxing power] we must construe the provision to be a tax rather than a mandate with penalty, since that would render it constitutional rather than unconstitutional. But we cannot rewrite the statute to be what it is not. There is simply no way, without doing violence to the fair meaning of the words used, to escape what Congress enacted: a mandate that individuals maintain minimum essential coverage, enforced by a penalty." (National Federation of Independent Business v. Sebelius, 2012, dissenting opinion by Antonin Scalia, Anthony Kennedy, Clarence Thomas and Samuel Alito). What Liberty Is Not. Look at America over the past one hundred and twenty five years and see the United States Supreme Court rule that states have the right to ban women from obtaining abortions. See it proclaim that the word liberty mentioned in the Due Process Clause of the Fourteenth Amendment does not mean liberty, and that there is no right to obtain an abortion because the word abortion is nowhere to be found and nowhere implied in the Constitution. In fact, the right to obtain an abortion is a logical implication of the right to liberty, since human personhood exists only potentially and not actually at the moment of conception. In addition, the Fourteenth Amendment does not recognize any constitutional rights of unborn fetuses but only born persons: "All persons born or naturalized in the United States, and subject to the jurisdiction thereof, are citizens." Listen to the court throw logic and language to the winds in a quest to outlaw abortion: "We hold that Roe and Casey must be overruled. The Constitution makes no reference to abortion, and no such right is implicitly protected by any constitutional provision, including the one on which the defenders of Roe and Casey now chiefly rely—the Due Process Clause of the Fourteenth Amendment." (Dobbs v. Jackson Women's Health Organization, 2022, majority opinion by Samuel Alito). What Liberty Is Not. When it was built, the Statue of Liberty was red-brown and shiny. Within twenty years, the copper cover oxidized to dull green through reactions with air, water and acid, but the oxidation stopped with the formation of a protective layer of copper salt. Since the dawn of the twentieth century, the nation which the Statue of Liberty symbolized has been corroding from incessant acid attacks launched by mob rule. The attacks commenced with the Marxist Left during their Progressive Era. They have continued in the twenty first century with an attack launched by the Christian Right in the Dobbs decision. After one hundred and twenty five years of mob launched attacks on the Constitution, the nation stands disfigured forever.

KANTIAN BOMBERS TARGET TRUTH

His nickname was Bomber Harris. The head of the Royal Air Force Bomber Command targeting Germany during World War II, Arthur Harris was fearsome. His task was to implement the British government's policy of area bombing German cities. Issued by the Air Ministry of the War Cabinet in 1942, the Area Bombing Directive ordered the RAF Bomber Command to destroy Germany's industrial workforce and demoralize the population through indiscriminate aerial bombardment. Distinguished from precision bombing which targets specific sites, area bombing reached its culmination in the bombing of Dresden in 1945, which destroyed the city center and killed 25000 civilians. In the eighteenth century, during the age known as the Enlightenment, a philosopher was active who declared war on its principles and sought to return the West to its antiEnlightenment, Faustian, romanticist roots. The most influential and discussed philosopher in modern times, Immanuel Kant declared war on the Enlightenment affirmation of common sense and human sanity. This was the affirmation that physical objects exist, and are as they are, and are directly perceived by man. "I have found it necessary to deny knowledge in order to make room for faith", proclaimed Kant in his master work Critique of Pure Reason. To deny knowledge. Civilized people could scarcely believe that such words could ever be uttered and such a brazen attack on truth could ever be launched. When they read these words, they had difficulty trusting the evidence of their senses and believing what had they just read. To deny knowledge. Civilized people saw in Kant's mission statement a clarion call to the psychotics of the world to rise up and storm the ramparts of the human mind, and they knew that the widespread acceptance of Kant's philosophy would commence a campaign of indiscriminate mental destruction and philosophic bombing the likes of which modern times had never seen before. Their fears came true, and Immanuel Kant became the destroyer of the Enlightenment, the voice of the late modern age, and the father of the decline and fall of the West. Listen to Kant and hear the airplanes of antiEnlightenment gather and prepare for a campaign of area bombing which would leave no sector of society unscathed and as it would reduce the field of philosophy to smoke and ashes. Immanuel Kant. Listen to Kant proclaim that when man perceives something, he perceives nothing. Man is blind when he sees and is blind because he has eyes, and socalled physical objects have been manufactured by man's visual apparatus and are unreal: "What objects may be in themselves, and apart from this receptivity of our sensibility [sense perception], remains completely unknown to us. Once we understand this, we realize that not only are the drops of rain mere appearances, but that even their round shape, nay even the space in which they fall, are nothing in themselves, but merely modifications of consciousness. The actual object—the object as it really is—remains unknown to us." (Critique of Pure Reason). Kantian Bombers. Now listen to Kant's students and hear the earsplitting thunder of psychosis crash down on the modern world. Socalled physical objects are the products of democratic consensus: "There's no court of appeal higher than a democratic consensus." (The Next Left, interview of Richard Rorty by Scott Stossel, Atlantic Unbound, April 23, 1998). The belief that there exist physical objects outside of consciousness is unsound and opposed to common sense: "The idea of an antecedently existing reality, the idea that there is a reality out there with an intrinsic nature to be respected and corresponded to, is not a manifestation of sound common sense." (Achieving Our Country: Leftist Thought In Twentieth Century America by Richard Rorty). The belief in the existence of physical objects is ungrounded and illegitimate: "Nothing grounds our practices, nothing legitimizes them, nothing shows them to be in touch with the way things are." (From Logic To Language To Play by Richard Rorty). No person has ever perceived or can ever perceive such a thing as a physical world. Socalled physical objects are the products of mentally processed data, the structures, edits and amplifications of the human nervous system, and modifications of human consciousness: "No human being has ever experienced an objective world, or even a world at all. The sights and sounds and pulsings that you experience are consequences of processed data—data that has been structured, edited, or amplified by the nervous system. The world that you see and hear is nothing more than a modification of your consciousness." (The End of Faith: Religion, Terror, and the Future of Reason by Sam Harris). The belief in the existence of physical objects can never be proven or confirmed: "There is nothing that undergirds our beliefs, nothing to which our beliefs might be referred for either confirmation or correction." (The Trouble With Principle by Stanley Fish). The belief in the existence of physical objects is a product of society and possesses no objective truth: "Society in its unified and structural character is the fact of the case; the nonsocial individual is an abstraction arrived at by imagining what man would be if all his human qualities were taken away. Society, as a real whole, is the normal order, and the mass as an aggregate of isolated units is the fiction." (The Ethics Of Democracy by John Dewey). Socalled physical objects are the products of social agreement: "The best definition of truth is the one posed by philosopher Charles Peirce: 'The opinion that is fated to be agreed by all who investigate is what we mean by the truth, and the object represented by this opinion is the real.' " (Logic: The Theory Of Inquiry by John Dewey). There is no fixed, objective, immortal truth, and socalled physical objects are nothing more than ideological fictions: "Everything I have said and done in these last years is relativism. If relativism signifies contempt for fixed categories and men who claim to be the bearers of an objective, immortal truth, then there is nothing more relativistic than Fascist attitudes and activity. From the fact that all ideologies are of equal value, that all ideologies are mere fictions, the modern relativist infers that everybody has the right to create for himself his own ideology and to attempt to enforce it with all the energy of which he is capable." (Diuturna by Benito Mussolini). The belief in the existence of physical objects is a product of folk and race and possesses no objective truth: "A sound theory of knowledge demonstrates that only the person whose character and attitude are determined by his kind, his race, and who actually belongs to the community, is able to see facts in the right way, and to form valid impressions of human beings and things. In the deepest core of his feelings, and in the smallest fiber of his brain tissue, man stands within the confines of his folk and race. An alien [a person of a different race] may be as critical as he wants to be, he may be intelligent in his endeavor, he may read books and write them, but he thinks and understands things differently because he belongs to a different kind, and he remains within the existential conditions of his own kind in every decisive thought." (No Compromise: The Conflict Between Two Worlds by Melvin Rader, quoting Carl Schmitt). The belief in the existence of physical objects is a product of bourgeois machines, property, production and the will to power and possesses no objective truth: "Don't wrangle with us so long as you apply, to our intended abolition of bourgeois property, the standard of your bourgeois notions of freedom, culture, law, etc. Your very ideas are but the outgrowth of the conditions of your bourgeois production and bourgeois property, just as your jurisprudence is but the will of your class made into a law for all, a will whose essential character and direction are determined by the economical conditions of existence of your class." (Communist Manifesto by Karl Marx and Friedrich Engels). The belief in the existence of physical objects is a product of gender, race, class, culture and sexual orientation and possesses no objective truth. The single absolute truth known to man is the absolute truth that there are no absolute truths: "Progressives, socialists, statists, communists—all enemies of civilization argue all issues on the basis of moral relativism, one odious derivation of which is multiculturalism. There are many arguments for why such principles are wrong. But perhaps the most obvious problem with moral relativism and its counterparts is that from which moral relativism springs: the idea that there is no objective truth. If there is no objective truth, then how can the statement there is no objective truth be true? If nothing is true, then how can the assumption be made that it is true there is no such thing that is truly inherently good or inherently bad, or that it is true that there is no culture that is truly better than any other culture? To argue in favor of moral relativism or multiculturalism requires a belief that there is objective truth; this is a conundrum that leftists cannot argue away. Since all leftism stems from a fallacious premise, all of its aspects must be fallacious. If only anyone would think it through, perhaps we could right this ship." (Dispelling Moral Relativism, Multiculturalism And By Extension All Leftism by Andrew Mellon). Looking inward into the dark depths of his psychosis, the relativist proclaims that physical objects do not exist. He proclaims that what is called reality is equal to the contents of his consciousness, is dependent on his mind and is created by his acts of perception. Rejecting reality in favor of his biases, irrationality, self deception and mental illness, he is the voice of civilizational collapse in the age created by Kant: "Is truth relative? If it is, then whatever you believe is true for you. Have you ever had a false belief? Have you ever had an expectation or prediction and been let down or surprised? When you're trying to make up your mind about what is true, do you look inward or outward. Do you look at what's in your mind or do you look for evidence and use reason to evaluates the various alternatives? If the latter, then truth isn't dependent on the contents of your consciousness. Truth is dependent on reality. When people don't adjust their beliefs in accordance with reality they are engaging in self deception and rationalization or exhibiting irrational bias. People who never adjust their beliefs in accordance with reality are institutionalized as mentally ill." (Lane Community College, lanecc.edu). Kantian Bombers. Since the dawn of the twentieth century, the West has been subjected to area bombing by Kantian planes loaded with ideologies of relativism. They have wreaked devastation far and wide. Proclaiming that truth is the product of social consensus, the product of gender, race, class, culture and sexual orientation, and the product of individual wishes and desires, the Kantian assault on truth has rendered philosophy unrecognizable. Truth is subjective, morality is subjective, beauty is subjective and politics is power. The murder of millions in pursuit of socialist religions, from communism to fascism. Hoodlums taking over streets, crime running out of control, rage roaring unchecked, and networks of terror shattering free nations. These are the legacies of Kant in the late modern age.

CHILD RAPE IN BRITAIN'S PRIVATE SCHOOLS

They were towers of educational standards and achievement, and objects of national admiration and respect. Open to all pupils without respect to location, family affiliation or paternal profession, they trained the officers and administrators of the British Empire. Their names fill a gallery of prestige, and to graduate from one conferred a badge of nobility whose shine would never fade. Eton College. Westminster School. St Paul's School. Wycombe Abbey. Brighton College. They were the crown jewels of the British educational establishment, and the fires of their excellence inspired schools throughout the world. They are Britain's private schools, and in the twenty first century, they exist in name only, shells of their former self, morally bankrupt institutions gutted by firestorms of a Marxist religion which is the new ruler of the nation. In the twenty first century, Britain's private schools have caught the fever sweeping the nation and sweeping the West, and become indoctrination centers for the new religion. This fever, this delirium, this malarial madness known as Marxism has invaded every sector of society and left nothing unscathed in its advance. It has left its mark on cabinets, councils, commissions, city halls, corporate boardrooms, courts of law and communications channels throughout the nation, and Britain's world reknown private schools have become schools of agitation and propaganda, raping children's minds from reveille to sundown in every classroom and dormitory on campus. Britain's Private Schools Today. Britain's private schools today reject liberal education and launch campaigns to effect Marxist social and political change. They reject the Enlightenment ideas of individual rights and human universalism in favor of Marxist identity politics. They condemn capitalism as a regime of white privilege and systemic bias. They condemn reason and science as expressions of unconscious bias against blacks. They teach critical race theory, which proclaims that progressive politics is critical of liberal Enlightenment ideas and promotes black Marxist dictatorship in their place. They segregate classrooms and clubs in accordance with race and hold black power celebrations in the blacks only areas. They promote antisemitism on Holocaust Memorial Day, condemning Israel as a genocidal nation because it fights Muslim terror, and advocates a new Holocaust against Jews. They reject natural, liberal, individual justice in favor of mystical social justice. They reject the transmission of academic knowledge and skills in favor of Marxist tub thumping and rabble rousing. They reject the teaching of liberal ideas and Western literary classics in the name of decolonizing the curriculum. They hold Marxist religious assemblies worshipping the gods of Gender, Race, Class, Culture and Sexual Orientation. They issue Young Pioneer and Hitler Youth type uniforms emblazoned with Black Lives Matter slogans demanding the overthrow of liberal democracy. They promote black identity politics and hatred of whites in the name of antiracism. They reject the genetic basis of human sex determination, discovered in 1905 by Nettie Stevens and Edmund Wilson, and teach the religion of transgenderism proclaiming that human sex is not fixed and immutable, that there are no such things as boys or girls, or males or females, that gender is subjective and nonbinary, and there are as many genders as there are people on the planet to choose them. They reject the language of logic and law in favor of hate fueled vitriol, violence and sulphuric acid, poured into bottles marked identity politics, and thrown into the faces of liberal dissenters: "British state education is not in the best of health. Countless school buildings are falling into disrepair, some dangerously so. Student absenteeism has hit record highs. Worst of all, pupils appear to be at the mercy of woke activism masquerading as education. They are being taught gender ideology as part of absurdly explicit sex education lessons and are being indoctrinated into fashionable theories of white privilege, systemic racism and unconscious bias. But those who might think uppercrust private schools are any better on this front are sorely mistaken. Far from providing a bulwark against identity politics, private schools are actually spearheading the identitarian revolution in education. Take the American School in London (ASL), Britain's most expensive day school. ASL pupils have been taught critical race theory in lessons and have even been segregated into race based 'affinity groups' in their after school clubs. According to the Jewish Chronicle, the school also cynically exploited last year's Holocaust Memorial Day to promote woke activists and journalists to pupils. This obsession with woke politicking has angered parents and even caught the attention of Ofsted, England's schools inspectorate. In 2022, Ofsted downgraded the formerly 'outstanding' ASL to 'needs improvement', the second lowest possible rating. Inspectors found that its intense focus on 'social justice' came at the expense of 'subject specific knowledge and skills'. They even ordered the school to teach social justice issues with more 'proportionality' and 'age appropriateness' in future. The ASL is hardly an exceptional case. In 2020, Eton College, a school synonymous with the British ruling class, responded to the murder of George Floyd in the US by announcing plans to 'decolonize' its curriculum. Today, woke ideas not only permeate Eton's teaching, but also the assemblies and religious services that shape the school ethos. Prefects were even issued with Black Lives Matter themed waistcoats to demonstrate the school's commitment to the woke cultural revolution. The 2020 BLM protests had a similarly dramatic impact on Wellington School and Highgate School. Both fee paying schools have since declared themselves 'antiracist' institutions–a term that has become synonymous not with genuine antiracism, but with divisive racial identity politics. Gender ideology has also become a fixture of elite private schools. St Paul's School for Girls has scrapped the role of head girl for being too 'binary'. It has also introduced sessions for girls to explore their potential trans or nonbinary identities. Meanwhile, Brighton College has abandoned the terms 'boy' and 'girl' entirely. Not to be outdone, the ASL teaches children that there are as many as 64 genders they can choose from. That the woke revolution has come for Britain's private schools really shouldn't be such a surprise. After all, wokeness is now the ideology of the ruling class. This identitarian outlook has already colonized every other elite institution–from the media to the civil service and even the corporate boardroom. So it makes perfect sense that a private school would want to ensure its pupils are well versed in its catechisms and doctrines. Private school pupils now learn the jargon of identity politics much like an older generation of budding elites might have learned Latin or Ancient Greek." (Private Schools Are At The Vanguard Of Wokeness by Thomas Osborne). Britain's Private Schools Today. Britain's private schools today are leading a Marxist culture war against liberal civilization. Condemning capitalism as a regime of discrimination against women, nonwhites, gays, transgenders and the poor, they are mass producing warriors, marshals, bishops and bankers for the cause of social justice. They reject the nation's preeminent symbols of freedom, the Union Jack and the British Empire, in favor of the rainbow Pride Flag of diversity, equity and inclusion peddling Marxist racism, sexism and identity politics. They proclaim that a progressive school is run by diversity, equity and inclusion jackboots who smash and spray graffiti on the statues of Western colonial heroes who fought and died for the cause of the Enlightenment throughout the world. They promote black socialism, hoodlumism and power politics in the namer of Black Lives Matter. They condemn capitalism as a regime of white privilege and black disadvantage. They proclaim that a progressive school raises race consciousness in its black students and teaches them to take violent action against whites. They proclaim that a progressive school is a black racist school which parades itself as an antiracist school. They proclaim that a progressive school is a superwoke, supersocialist, supercommunist and superMarxist army training students to take up arms against the West: "If the battle of Waterloo was won on the playing fields of Eton, the current culture wars could be decided in the quads of the country's increasingly woke public [private] schools. Whereas in the past these once inherently conservative institutions aspired to produce field marshals, archbishops and bankers, they are now more committed to producing a new generation of social justice warriors. The tired, old, oppressive Union Jack that flew above Eton College, inspiring so many heroes of the British Empire, is being, symbolically, folded away, replaced by the rainbow flag of diversity and inclusion: it flutters in the Berkshire air, flirting with the Queen's up on the hill at Windsor. Nowadays you are almost as likely to bump into a group of public school kids at a Pride Event as you are to overhear them at Henley Royal Regatta or Badminton. The arms race of old, which saw independent schools spending millions of pounds on new libraries, swimming pools, squash courts, hockey pitches and (if the teachers or pupils were lucky) a few new classrooms, is at an end. In the sort of virtue signalling that now pervades the sector's websites, Wellington College proudly states that Black Lives Matter and the death of—it seems vulgar to note—the server of eight jail terms, George Floyd, were 'key drivers' in trying to 'raise awareness and take action' over privilege and disadvantage as they strive to become an 'antiracist school,' Just as you have to feel sorry for those teachers being forced to take the knee at the start of term inset days, you also have to wonder how happy the parents are seeing their children being lectured about the evils of privilege (and at such a crippling cost). And if the unwoke parents don't like what they see they have very little chance of finding a school that is not desperately trying to proclaim how virtuous they are. Inevitably, superwoke Brighton College was advertising for a Head of Diversity and Inclusion while the graffiti was still wet on the evil statues last summer. Highgate School has done the same, and also, like Wellington, proudly proclaims how it intends to be 'an actively antiracist school.' " (Schoolboy Error: The Folly Of Public Schools' Race To Embrace The Religion Of Wokeness by Olivia Hartley). Britain's Private Schools Today. In 1917, George Orwell entered Eton College after winning a King's Scholarship, and left in 1921 without graduating when he heard the call of duty, and joined the Indian Imperial Police to protect freedom in savage lands. While he was a student, he was known as an independent thinker who rejected beliefs unsupported by evidence, and won arguments with the weapons of reason. "The remarkable thing about Orwell was that alone among the boys he was an intellectual and not a parrot for he thought for himself" (Enemies Of Promise by Cyrll Connolly). "He was extremely argumentative—about anything—and criticizing the masters and criticizing the other boys. We enjoyed arguing with him. He would generally win the arguments." (Remembering Orwell by Stephen Wadham, quoting John Wilkes). A century after Orwell left Eton, this preeminent private school has outlawed the culture of critical thinking and free exchange of ideas which it cultivated in Orwell's day. A century after Orwell left Eton to defend the West in India, the West is under attack in every private school in Britain. Rejecting the world which Orwell fought and died for, and whose novel 1984 defended it and condemned its totalitarian enemies, Britain's private schools today have fallen under the control of Marxist extremism, evangelism and identity politics. This is a virus which has consumed the West.

MARXISM, ISLAM AND KRISTALLNACHT

It was nationwide, reaching from Munich to Berlin to Hamburg. It took place on November 9-10 1938, and lined German streets with shattered window glass and shattered lives. In a twenty four hour period, 1400 Jewish synagogues were burned down, thousands of Jewish businesses were vandalized, Jewish houses and apartments were broken into, Jewish religious objects were desecrated, and Jews were humiliated, assaulted, killed and taken away to concentration camps by the tens of thousands. This day of disgrace is known as Kristallnacht, the Night of Broken Glass, and it was chapter one of Hitler's Holocaust which would claim the lives of six million Jews. November 9, 2025 marked the eighty seventh anniversary of Kristallnacht, and the solemn commemorations held throughout the world were darkened by a rising tide of antisemitism fueled by a Marxist-Muslim axis which has achieved power and influence in every sector of society. Eighty seven years after Kristallnacht, antisemitism is alive and well and stronger than ever, directed and organized by the successors of the national socialists, by an axis of Marxists and Muslims who worship different gods, the Marxist Collective and the Muslim God in Heaven, but are two massively popular global movements, one in the West and the other in the East, united by a common hatred of the Western Enlightenment. In the 1960s, they joined forces, and in the twenty first century, they are covering the planet, East and West, in a pall of violence and destruction against Jews which is writing the final chapter of the Jews and the final chapter of the West, which latter Jews are held to represent in the eyes of their Marxist and Muslim haters. Kristallnacht* Today. Look at the world today and see New York City under attack by a Marxist-Muslim axis led by Mayor elect Zohran Mamdani. See Jewish parents and children run for their lives in the grip of panic and fear. See a storm of hatred rain down riots and radicalism against the Jewish population. See a cultural shift against Jews making antisemitism fashionable and attractive. See Marxist-Muslim combat squads beat up zionists on the streets. See college campuses, public schools and online platforms hijacked by Marxist-Muslim activists and peddle Jew hatred. See Marxist demonstrations convulse the city and shout Queers for Palestine, Bisexuals for Palestine and Transgenders for Palestine. See Marxist-Muslim activists launch a Free Palestine movement advocating a second Holocaust and the destruction of Israel. See a Marxist, Muslim, Mamdani majority defend Hamas terror attacks against Israel and demand the massacre of Jews in the city. See a city cultivate antisemitism, welcome antisemitism and become comfortable with antisemitism. See a city rendered feverish, deranged and abnormal, and demand the killing of Jews and the overthrow of liberal democracy. See Mayor elect Mamdani reject Israel's right to exist, shouting globalize the intifada and demanding the global extermination of Jews. See Mayor elect Mamdani advocate the destruction of Israel in the name of Students for Justice in Palestine. See Mayor elect Mamdani advocate a campaign of boycott, disinvestment, sanctions and extermination against Israel. See Mayor elect Mamdani seek to arrest Benjamin Netanyahu on the charge of leading the only free nation in the Middle East and fighting Muslim terror without compromise and without surcease. See a mass exodus of Jews from the city, Jews fleeing for the lives. See the Democratic Communists, the Democratic Socialists, the Democratic Marxists and the Democratic Antisemites of America, led by Mayor elect Mamdani, take over the city. See Mayor elect Mamdani seek to implement a far left political agenda having Jews at the head of its hit list. See Mayor elect Mamdani lead a Marxist-Muslim axis advocating Palestinian resistance against Israel and Palestinian destruction of Israel. See the Jewish population in the city arm itself for the first time and live under a shadow of death: "Outgoing New York City Mayor Eric Adams used his visit to Israel to deliver one of his bluntest warnings yet about incoming socialist Mayor elect Zohran Mamdani, declaring, 'If I were a Jewish New Yorker I would be concerned about my children,' and insisting, 'Everything is not fine' for the city's Jews as antisemitism surges and a new administration prepares to take power. Adams arrived in Israel on Friday for his final trip as mayor, meeting with business and political leaders and visiting sites tied to the October 7, 2023, Hamas massacre. On Sunday, the Combat Antisemitism Movement (CAM) hosted an event in Tel Aviv honoring him for his support of Israel and his efforts to confront rising antisemitism—an event that quickly shifted into a stark warning about New York's future under Mamdani. Asked about Jewish safety once Mamdani takes office January 1, Adams did not hedge. 'We need to be honest about the moment and cannot sugarcoat it,' he said. 'The New York Jewish community must prepare themselves. This is a period where you need to be conscious about the level of global hostility towards the Jewish community. If I were a Jewish New Yorker, I would be concerned about my children.' Pressed again, Adams was even more direct: 'Everything is not fine. If you say everything is fine, you are setting yourself up for failure.' The outgoing mayor described an alarming cultural shift in which antisemitism is now socially rewarded. 'It is now cool and hip to be antisemitic,' Adams said, recounting an encounter with a teenager in Brownsville who called him a zionist and demanded Israel's destruction despite being unable to locate the country on a map—a worldview absorbed entirely through social media. 'They hijacked our young people,' Adams warned. 'Their plan was well executed. Now we need a professional plan to fight back.' He said the same trend is accelerating across college campuses, public schools, and online platforms. Adams pointed to protesters 'walking around the country with signs saying 'Queers for Palestine,' calling it 'queer when the only place you can walk around in the Middle East being queer is Israel. They've hijacked the conversation.' Adams also argued that the core of the antiIsrael campaign has never been about land or sovereignty. 'The 'Free Palestine Movement' was never about land,' he said. 'It was, and is, about the destruction and eradication of Jewish people.' He then drew a comparison to his own community: 'If this were happening to the African-American community, you would not be silent. So why are others silent now?' Adams reserved some of his sharpest language for what he called the messaging collapse following Hamas's October 7 massacre, arguing that Israel's supporters failed to counter opponents who flooded the public sphere with emotionally charged images from Gaza. He said that figures he described as 'the Zohrans of the world' helped drive that narrative, turning the imagery into a rallying point for anger against Israel. Adams has previously called Mamdani's victory 'abnormal' and evidence that 'people are comfortable with being antisemitic.' During the campaign, Mamdani repeatedly refused to condemn the slogan 'globalize the intifada' as antisemitic, only reversing himself after sustained backlash—even as he continued to deny Israel's right to exist as a Jewish state and framed himself as a champion of the Free Palestine movement. Mamdani has faced criticism for years over his affiliations and positions. He cofounded a Students for Justice in Palestine chapter in college, has backed the BDS campaign since 2014, pledged not to visit Israel as mayor, and said he would 'exhaust every legal option' to arrest Israeli Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu if he visits New York City—citing International Criminal Court warrants the US does not recognize. As Breitbart News reported, veteran Democratic strategist Hank Sheinkopf warned that Mamdani's victory would mark 'the end of Jewish New York as we know it,' predicting that Jews who can leave the city will. He charged that the Democratic Socialists of America seized 'the carcass' of the Democratic Party to advance a hard left agenda. In a separate exclusive interview with Breitbart News, Mosab Hassan Yousef—the 'Son of Hamas'—warned that Mamdani is functioning as a 'Trojan horse' for a 'Red-Green Alliance' uniting radical leftist and Islamist forces. The Ohio director of the Council on American-Islamic Relations (CAIR) echoed that sentiment, calling Mamdani's win a 'referendum' on Palestinian 'resistance' and a blow to the Democratic establishment. Public anxiety among Jewish residents is rising. The New York Post reported that Jewish New Yorkers are now rushing to purchase firearms for self defense in the wake of Mamdani's victory—a dramatic shift in a city where many Jews traditionally relied on police protection rather than personal weapons." (Outgoing NYC Mayor Eric Adams Warns 'Everything Is Not Fine. If I Were Jewish, I'd Be Worried For My Kids' by Joshua Klein). Kristallnacht* Today. Look at the world today and see Marxist-Muslim activists condemn Israel as a genocidal regime because it kills Palestinian terrorists and kidnappers in self defense, seeks to stem the rising tide of Muslin terror sweeping the world, and seeks to expand the reach of freedom in the form of West Bank settlements. See antiIsrael activists and proPalestinian activists smash Holocaust museums and reduce campuses, neighborhoods, streets and cities to no go zones for Jews. See a new movement of Marxist-Muslim national socialists restart Hitler's Holocaust and target every Jew alive, anywhere in the world, for destruction: "Anti Israel activists in South Africa are planning protests at a local Holocaust museum to demand that it recognize the recent Gaza war as a 'genocide,' comparable to the nazi murder of six million Jews. Unlike the Holocaust, in which nazi Germany targeted Jews for complete destruction, Israel's war in Gaza was waged in self defense after an invasion by Hamas terrorists who had clear genocidal intent themselves. Israel lacked any intent for genocide, and—as military expert John Spencer observed—was relieved when the war was over and the hostages were returned, the opposite of what would have been a genocidal agenda. After the ceasefire began earlier this month, some proPalestinian activists began referring to Gazans as 'holocaust survivors,' prompting both outrage and mockery." (Israel-Haters Try to Hijack a Holocaust Museum for Gaza 'Genocide' by Joel Pollak). Kristallnacht* Today. November 9-10, 1938. The cries of breaking glass and the roar of raging fires fill the air across Germany. Hatred is devouring Jews and their institutions and turning back the clock on a twentieth century civilization. In the twenty first century, the cries and roars have returned, set into motion by a Marxist-Muslim axis screaming intifada, smashing and burning synagogues, and chasing Jews off campuses and city streets. In the twenty first century, Hitler's successors are destroying Jews, Israel and Western liberal civilization.

THE SOUTHERN COMMUNIST LAW CENTER

The constitution of 1936 gives citizens the right to unite in various communist led organizations—trade unions, cooperative associations, youth, sport and defense organizations, and cultural and scientific societies. All of these may nominate candidates for election to the soviets. But it does not permit the formation of political groups other than the Communist Party, which it describes as 'the vanguard of the working people in their struggle to strengthen and develop the socialist order.' Stalin himself stated in 1936 that the constitution did not alter the position of the Communist Party. (What Is The Communist Party? American Historical Association, January 1, 1945). Communist societies are monocultures, raising a single crop called tyranny. Every sector of communist society marches in lockstep with the party line of worship of the Collective, and every sector is a picture and tentacle of the party. There are no free organizations in a communist society, and its youth organizations, sports organizations, culture organizations, science organizations, labor unions and cooperatives are, one and all, different ways of naming and spelling the totalitarian octopus called communism. In the twenty first century, in the nation which led the free world's struggle against communism during the Cold War, a monoculture has become entrenched and has replaced the forest of freedom which marked the nation at its founding. In the twenty first century, the United States of America has caught the world fever of a new religiousness, the spirit of the times bringing down Marxist subversion, competing with fascist, Islamic and Christian Right subversion for power and influence, and has established a Marxist monoculture across the cultural and academic establishment. Founded in 1971 by Julian Bond, Morris Dees and Joseph Levin in Montgomery, Alabama, and parading as a public interest law firm and civil rights advocacy organization, the Southern Poverty Law Center is among America's premier communist organizations and exemplifies the single crop growing like a cancer in the cultural and academic centers of the nation. Southern Poverty Law Center. Look at the Southern Poverty Law Center and see an organization run by Marxist partisans. See an organization raise funds for Marxist causes. See an organization place the enemies of far left politics on hate lists. See an organization run by Marxist assassins and hitmen parade as a civil rights watchdog. See an organization run by a Marxist Ku Klux Klan batter, tar and feather conservatives and libertarians. See an organization enforce Marxist orthodoxy and slander its enemies. See an organization condemn freedom fighters as members of the radical right. See an organization condemn as fascists the defenders of American federalism and constitutionalism. See an organization condemn as national socialists the defenders of traditional family values. See an organization condemn as culturally regressive the defenders of Enlightenment law and justice. See an organization condemn as enemies of the peoplethe defenders of the Enlightenment heritage of liberty. See an organization condemn as bludgeons of bigotry and intolerance the defenders of biological reality and the genetic basis of sex determination. See an organization condemn as cretins and child killers the defenders of homeschooling and parental choice. See an organization condemn as extremists and fanatics the defenders of Enlightenment ethics and politics. See an organization condemn as villains, gangsters and dangerous criminals the defenders of Enlightenment liberal values. See an organization open fire on the defenders of individual rights and the rule of law. See an organization run the bulldozers of communist thought police across college campuses and suppress academic freedom. See an organization bully, intimidate and cancel the enemies of Marxist rabble rousing and tub thumping. See an organization lead riots, assaults and mass murder against the enemies of political correctness, and seek to eradicate every last trace of human freedom and flourishing in the world: "Understanding the SPLC’s hate list and its dangers requires understanding the SPLC, its history, and how it has changed from a civil rights organization into a politically partisan and fundraising driven organization. While the SPLC did good work decades ago fighting segregation in the South, it has become an unreliable, scandal ridden, and far left activist organization that attacks anyone who disagrees with its narrow political agenda. Even left of center Politico has noted the longstanding criticism that SPLC is 'becoming more of a partisan progressive hit operation than a civil rights watchdog.' Commentators across the ideological spectrum agree. Cornell law professor William Jacobsen says that '[t]ime and again, I see the SPLC using the reputation it gained decades ago fighting the Klan as a tool to bludgeon mainstream politically conservative opponents.' Kimberly Strassel calls SPLC a 'far left activist group' that 'exists to smear conservatives' and that 'tags you as a hater' if it 'doesn't agree with your views.' Shikha Dalmia laments that 'the SPLC is not up to the task' of monitoring actual hate groups because '[i]t is too busy enforcing liberal [Marxist] orthodoxy against its intellectual opponents.' SPLC's Hatewatch blog is a perfect example. SPLC says this blog 'monitors and exposes the activities of the American radical right' and the 'activities and events of antiLGBT organizations.' The socalled 'radical right' and 'antiLGBT organizations' SPLC has identified include many beloved, respected, and mainstream conservative and religious organizations and individuals, such as Ben Carson, Heritage Foundation, Dennis Prager, PragerU, The Federalist Society, Franklin Graham, Catholic Medical Association, Alliance Defending Freedom, Heritage Action, Focus on the Family, Family Research Council, Ethics and Religious Liberty Commission, Liberty Counsel, Pacific Justice Institute, The Leadership Institute, First Liberty Institute, Ruth Institute, European Center for Law and Justice, Alaska Family Council, Florida Family Policy Council, Texas Values, and Homeschool Legal Defense Association, to name just a few. Demonstrating the breadth and danger of SPLC's conception of hate, SPLC labelled the Boston chapter of The Federalist Society 'antiLGBT' because it hosted then United States Attorney General Jeff Sessions for a talk on The Future of Religious Liberty. It's simple–if you promote a viewpoint SPLC disagrees with, they label you a hater or extremist. SPLC does not want dialogue or debate. They just want to cancel you. Mark Pulliam observes that SPLC's hate label results in 'dissent [being] delegitimatized, and political foes [being] demonized.' Megan McArdle criticizes SPLC for lumping 'principled conservatives' with 'bigots' and observes: 'Given the increasing tendency of powerful tech companies to flex their muscle against hate groups, we may see more and more institutions unwittingly turned into critics or censors, not just of nazi propaganda, but also of fairly mainstream ideas.' Karl Zinsmeister said, 'Taking people and groups with political views different from your own and lumping them with villains and gangsters is the mark of a bullying organization that aims to intimidate and even criminalize philosophical opponents.' Floyd Corkins cited SPLC as motivation for his attempted mass murder at the Family Research Council (FRC) in 2012. He told investigators that he 'had chosen the research council as his target after finding it listed as an antigay group on the website of the Southern Poverty Law Center' and that he 'planned to stride into the building and open fire on the people inside in an effort to kill as many as possible.' In addition, students cited SPLC as a reason they rioted and assaulted a female professor at Middlebury College in 2017." (Setting The Record Straight: The Truth About The SPLC, Alliance Defending Freedom, website). Southern Poverty Law Center. Look at the Southern Poverty Law Center and see a Marxist slander machine disguised as a civil rights organization. See an organization peddle Marxist politics, bias and agendas. See an organization construct hate maps and pin the names of conservatives, libertarians and the defenders of parental rights on them, targeting them for assassination. See an organization condemn as riders of the Ku Klux Klan the defenders of limited government, free speech and constitutional rights. See an organization condemn as haters and extremists the opponents of the chemical and surgical mutilation of children to change what cannot be changed, to change the biological basis of human gender, and seek to expel them from society: "The Federal Bureau of Investigation (FBI) has cut ties with the left wing Southern Poverty Law Center (SPLC), the agency's director, Kash Patel, announced Friday. In a social media post, Patel said the SPLC 'long ago abandoned civil rights work and turned into a partisan smear machine' and described how the organization has targeted Americans. 'Their socalled hate map has been used to defame mainstream Americans and even inspired violence. That disgraceful record makes them unfit for any FBI partnership. In April, during our AntiChristian Bias Panel, I made it clear that the FBI will never rely on politicized or agenda driven intelligence from outside groups—and certainly not from the SPLC. Under this FBI, all ties with the SPLC have officially been terminated,' he wrote. The SPLC's website said its Hate Map has been 'available to track hate since 2000.' Breitbart News reported in May that the SPLC targeted Turning Point USA, which was founded by free speech champion Charlie Kirk, by putting it on the hate map beside Ku Klux Klan (KKK) chapters because it had an 'antigovernment' stance. In 2023, the SPLC placed Moms for Liberty and other parental rights groups on its Hate Map as alleged 'antigovernment extremist groups,' according to Breitbart News. Another addition to its map in 2024 was a group run by gay people who are against the transgendering of children. 'The SPLC, which has assigned itself the role of being the arbiter of what constitutes a hate group,'is now smearing the group Gays Against Groomers as a hate group, according to its latest Year in Hate and Extremism report in conjunction with its updated Hate Map,' Breitbart News reported." (Kash Patel: FBI Cuts Ties With Left Wing 'Partisan Smear Machine' SPLC by Amy Furr). Southern Poverty Law Center. In 1959, SPLC cofounder Julian Bond visited Cuba to support the new communist regime: "I am celebrating President Castro's triumphant entry into Havana. I am enchanted by the revolution and admire the Marxist state Castro is building." In 1961, Bond visited Finland to attend an international festival sponsored by the World Federation of Democratic Youth, an arm of the Soviet Union. The American section of the federation, called the Young Communist League, was the youth arm of the Communist Party USA. In 1964, Bond joined the National Conference for New Politics, whose aim was to transform the Democrat Party into a communist party. Bond's Southern Poverty Law Center bears the terrifying imprint of its founders. It is a special kind of law organization. It is a weapon of Marxist gender, race, class and sexual orientation politics, a weapon of black critical race theory critical of Enlightenment liberal democracy, and a weapon of communist propaganda and agitation. Constructing an enemies' list called Hate Groups which targets the enemies of Marxism for assassination, the SPLC is terrorizing the voices of freedom in America.

AMERICA'S THANKSGIVING: HARVEST OF SHAME

It began in November 1621 in Plymouth, Massachusetts. English colonists known as the Pilgrims shared an abundant harvest with the Wampanoag Indians and celebrated the abundance. Thus was born Thanksgiving Day, an annual festival celebrating the harvest and other blessings of the past year, a national holiday in America bringing together family and friends expressing gratitude for their flourishing and success. Four centuries after the first harvest festival in modern times, the nation which founded it, celebrating it on the fourth Thursday in November, has nothing of value to celebrate. Four centuries after the first Thanksgiving Day was celebrated in the wild desolation of the New World, the United States of America is reaping the seeds of destruction it began planting at the dawn of the twentieth century, and celebrates a meaningless holiday. On Thanksgiving Day, November 27, 2025, America stood as a morally bankrupt nation on its way back into the wilderness and the eons of prehistory. On America's national day of thanks, there is nothing for civilized Americans to be thankful for, the nation is receiving the evil it sowed, and the clock of history is racing backward into the year zero. At the dawn of the twentieth century, developments commenced in America which reflected a worldwide trend. They painted a portrait of the decline and fall of civilization, and in America the process has claimed the greatest arsenal and brightest lighthouse of freedom the world has ever known. The process has spared nothing in its wake, has felled the mightiest of nations, and is the Grim Reaper claiming the soul of the nation. Over the past one hundred and twenty five years, mobocracy has supplanted liberal democracy, the institutions of the Enlightenment have fallen under attack, an age of second religiousness has dawned, seeking to bring back a second Dark Ages, and America and the West have become unrecognizable. In the twenty first century, America and the West have been overrun by four horsemen of the Apocalypse set into motion by the masses' rejection of reason, and the nation which led the struggle of the free world against its totalitarian enemies has descended into a shell of its former self. On Thanksgiving Day, November 27, 2025, Americans gorged themselves on a Devil's repast reeking of the Marxist Left, the Christian Right, fascism and national socialism, and these helpings spooned by the masses are nails in the coffin of the nation. Marxist Left. Look at America today and see forces of subversion ascendant, marching under the banners of a multiheaded monster. Brought to life by the terrifying logic of Marxist tribalism, this is an everexpanding monster of gender, race, class, culture and sexual orientation politics. See it declare war on the Enlightenment in the name of radical feminism, black power, ethnicity politics, queer politics, transgender politics and class struggle. See Marxist deconstructionists at work, destroying language, meaning, reference and truth. See Marxist identitarians weaponize reason, the sciences and the academy, reducing them to handmaidens and henchmen in a new age of faith: "In 1989, as the Soviet empire was crumbling, The New York Times noted an interesting new development: While millions who had lived under the brutal rule of communism for decades were finally throwing off their yoke, Marxist professors were taking over American academia: 'As Karl Marx's ideological heirs in communist nations struggle to transform his political legacy, his intellectual heirs on American campuses have virtually completed their own transformation from brash, beleaguered outsiders to assimilated academic insiders. It could be considered a success story for the students of class struggle, who were once regarded as subversives.' So began the article, which ran under the headline The Mainstreaming Of Marxism In US Colleges. It was penned by a journalist trained in understanding communists, the paper's 1985–1988 Moscow correspondent, Felicity Barringer. Barringer was right to note that inside the academy Marxism was growing especially in those areas that had to do with culture, because it had failed so badly in its economics: 'Where Marxism is thriving, these scholars say, is less in social science courses, where there is a possibility of practical application than in the abstract world of literary criticism. It is also in this field that new radicals—from feminists who say class analysis leaves women out, to deconstructionists who say historical truth does not exist—have posed the sharpest challenge to those who back Marx's theories of class struggle.' 'Marxism and feminism, Marxism and deconstruction, Marxism and race—this is where the exciting debates are,' Jonathan Wiener, professor of history at the University of California at Irvine said. That insight from Professor Wiener was important, as it foreshadowed the identity based Marxism of the 21st century. The struggle would no longer be based on economic class but on identity—based on ascribed characteristics, such as race, sex or national origin, that are inherited at birth and over which the individual has no control." (How Cultural Marxism Threatens The United States—And How Americans Can Fight It by Mike Gonzalez and Katharine Gorka). Christian Right. Look at America today and see forces of subversion ascendant, marching under the banners of the Christian God in Heaven. See a movement, growing since the 1960s, culminate in the present day, reaching new heights of power and influence. See it seek to take over and reconstruct society with the bulldozers of the Christian ministry. See it seek to control every level of political power, from the local school board to the Oval Office, and establish a Christian nation. See it seek to spread into every sector of society, from government to education to economics to culture, and imprison the institutions of the Enlightenment behind barbed wire fences marked the Old Testament, the New Testament, the Kingdom of God and the Return of Christ: "In recent years, the Christian right has become an increasingly powerful force in American politics. The belief that God has called on conservative Christians to rule over society has extended into all levels of government, from school boards to the White House. Many pundits call this movement Christian nationalism. But while it may seem like a phenomenon born out of our current political moment, it represents the culmination of various movements with roots that trace back decades. The more extreme elements didn't just materialize a few years ago. They've been there from the start. The idea that Christians should be in power has become a central mission of today's Christian right, but the idea was taking root decades ago. In remarks strikingly similar to today's rhetoric, Bob Weiner, founder of a major ministry focused on college campuses, said in 1985, 'We should be the head of our school board. We should be the head of our nation. We should be the senators and the congressmen. We should be the editors of our newspapers. We should be taking over every area of life.' the New Christian Right owed a lot to another movement, known as Christian Reconstructionism. The fundamentalist movement held that all aspects of society, including government, education, economics and culture, should conform to a strict interpretation of the Old Testament. Though less recognized, Reconstructionism heavily influenced the more mainstream New Christian Right and its aspirations for Christians to infiltrate systems of power. Up until the 1970s, the way many evangelicals believed the world would end gave them little incentive to get involved in politics. When the rapture came, the faithful would ascend to heaven, leaving the troubled world behind. That sense of remove began to fade due to the influence of Reconstructionists, who, by contrast, believed they had to build God's kingdom before Christ would return—which required political action." (The Genesis Of Christian Nationalism: How The Religious Right Came To Influence The 2024 Election by Phoebe Petrovic). Fascism. Look at America today and see forces of subversion ascendant, marching under the banners of Adolf Hitler's legions. See national socialists hallucinate Jewish world conspiracies as they promote Holocaust denial and white power extremism, and declare war on liberal democracy. See a virus of hate spread antisemitism, anticapitalism and antiEnlightenment, condemn statesmen such as Winston Churchill as villains, exalt Hitler as the savior of mankind, and launch a plan of extermination of freedom in the West: "Tucker Carlson has never hidden his hostility and twisted obsession toward Israel, Jews, or anyone who stands with them. Recently, though, his antiJewish rhetoric reached a new level. He is now elevating voices that not long ago were considered too extreme and shameful to be heard anywhere outside the shadows. Carlson has hosted several individuals with established antisemitic records, but the clearest example came when he hosted Nick Fuentes on his podcast—a Holocaust denying, Hitler praising, white nationalist, who calls for the defeat of 'global Jewry.' For more than two hours, Carlson gave him a platform to rant about 'organized Jewry' controlling America, to praise Stalin, and to smear Republicans who support Israel as victims of a 'brain virus.' Carlson didn't challenge, counter, or elucidate his own views for the audience. He simply amplified Fuentes' vile Jew hatred. Carlson also gave a platform to Darryl Cooper, an extremist historical revisionist, who argues the genocide of Jews in WWII was not a deliberate extermination plan but a logistical failure. Cooper claims Winston Churchill might be the 'real villain' of WWII, rather than Hitler." See the community declare war on science and empiricism in the name of Islamic knowledge. See it crush freedom of thought beneath expanding cities of mosques and minarets. See it shout down the voices of the Enlightenment over loudspeakers issuing calls to prayer and calls to war against America: "The Muslim mayor of Dearborn, Michigan is dismissing noise complaints about a mosque's call to prayer, deeming it a nonissue. Mayor Abdullah Hammoud spoke about the complaints during an appearance on the Not From Here podcast. The issue has been percolating for months, as some residents have raised concerns about the fact that the mosque in question uses a loudspeaker for its call to prayer multiple times a day. According to WXYZ: 'At the Islamic Institute of Knowledge on Schaefer Road, the call to prayer comes out of a loudspeaker twice a day for about two minutes. It's just one of the many mosques that follow this practice in the city, raising some concerns with residents.' 'Your freedom of religion does not allow you to force me to listen to your prayers in my yard or home,' one irritated resident, Andrea Unger, said." The traditional meal consists of roast turkey, gravy, cranberry sauce, smashed potatoes, baked green beans, sweet and sour cod, steamed rice, pickled green papaya relish, apple crisp, punch and soda. The twenty first century meal is ideological swill consumed by swine peddling subversion. The swine are the nation today; they feed at a trough filled with the Marxist Left, the Christian Right, fascism and Islam; and they have brought the nation's story of freedom to a close.
